Points to 'Long Record of Character'

Madison —(P)— Thomas M. Duncan, former financial secretary to Governor Philip F. LaFollette today filed a formal application with the Milwaukee House of Correction where he is serving a term of one to two years for fourth degree manslaughter.

The application probably will be heard by Governor LaFollette personally next week, aids in the executive office said.

Duncan was the governor's chief adviser during the 1937 legislative session and also had served as his financial secretary during LaFollette's previous administrations of 1931 and 1935.

He was convicted last June on charges that he drove an automobile while intoxicated and caused the death of Henry Schuetz, retired West Allis business man, in an accident on the Wisconsin avenue bridge in Milwaukee. Duncan began serving his term June 13.

The application for pardon declared that Duncan, because of his political prominence had been a victim of unprecedented public attention and hostile publicity.

Fears Maximum Term

The pardon request said:

"Because of the applicant's political prominence and the hostile sentiment engendered against him by reason thereof, the applicant is not likely to receive the benefit of the parole law when he becomes eligible for parole, and that unless executive clemency is granted he will be compelled to serve a maximum sentence contrary to the spirit and purpose of the indeterminate sentence law which would be grossly oppressive and discriminatory to him."

As part of the petition Duncan made the following statement to the governor:

"The applicant is suffering from a permanent vascular ailment as described in the medical testimony at the trial. Medical experts have advised the applicant that this ailment will shorten the span of his life materially, and that in view of his physical condition the sentence imposed upon the applicant is oppressive and unjust."

"The applicant has a long and outstanding record of unblemished, good character and no useful purpose will be served by continuing his imprisonment."

Pardon Opposed

Circuit Judge G. N. Risjord, Ashland, who presided at the trial, and Duncan's protegee, District Attorney Herbert Sievers, who conducted the prosecution, both have opposed the granting of any pardon.

Judge Risjord said he felt he had dealt leniently with Duncan when he imposed sentence on a fourth degree manslaughter charge. He stated that he could have found him guilty on a first degree charge requiring a state prison sentence of five to ten years.

Customary procedure, since Governor LaFollette created the state pardon board, is to have applications for executive clemency referred to that body for recommendation.

The pardoning power, however, rests solely with the chief executive. Governor LaFollette will be retired from office after Jan. 2. The executive has complete authority to grant personal hearings in pardon cases.

Embezzlement Charge

Milwaukee —(P)— Joseph E. Rechner, Jr., 31, of Menasha, and formerly of Appleton, indicted by the federal grand jury on a charge of embezzlement from the First National bank of Appleton, was released on $2,000 bail here today. Rechner, who quit his job at the bank a year ago after working there 11 years, was arrested at Menasha yesterday.

Noted educator at recent teachers' convention made two suggestions: (1) Teach children in such fashion that they may keep an open mind through life and (2) insist on their getting sustaining food at lunch time. Good ideas. An open mind and an open mouth are two things that should be able to shut on something solid. Many parents overcome obstacles by using The Post-Crescent classified want-ads. Dies Says Committee Has

'Abundant Evidence' to

Back Findings

Washington —(P)— Chairman Dies (D-Texas) said today the house committee on un-American activities had received evidence that the Communist party would attempt to form a national farmer-labor party within the next two years.

In an address prepared for radio broadcast, Dies said the committee had received "abundant evidence" to support a long series of findings against the Communist party in the United States.

He said these findings included:

"During the next two years, it will concentrate much of its effort in the formation of a national farmer-labor party which it will seek to dominate."

"It is an integral part of a world revolutionary movement for proletarian internationalism."

"It seeks ultimately the overthrow of the American form of government as established by the constitution of the United States. It aims to set up a dictatorship of the proletariat in this country."

"It is energetically applying for Trojan horse tactics of penetrating other organizations for the purpose of seeking to control them, or failing that, to destroy them."

"It is unusually active in our schools, both openly and subtly insinuating its propaganda into the minds of students."

"It is boring within the two major political parties. It has penetrated the government itself."

Accused of 'Chiseling'

In Extortion Attempt

New York —(P)— A jobless sailor, accused by federal agents of attempting a $10,000 "chisel" in an extortion attempt against the father of Eileen Balf, attractive society girl, will be turned over to the United States district attorney's office today.

The sub-debutante daughter of Thomas W. Balf, wealthy vice president of National Distillers, has had a G-man bodyguard for several weeks since her father received notices threatening her unless $3,000 was paid.

Dwight Brantley, federal bureau of investigation special agent, said the sailor, whom he identified as James Crosby Edwards, 33, tried to capitalize on the case by sending a later note demanding $10,000.

Garner and Roosevelt Have

Conference; May Determine

Course of Democratic Party

Washington —(P)— Vice President Garner returned to Washington today for an intimate talk with President Roosevelt which some politicians speculated might go far toward determining whether there will be harmony or conflict among Democratic legislators in the next congress.

Garner, it was learned, returned to the capital earlier than usual at the president's request.

Friends of Garner said they assumed he would explore with the president the fields of politics and possible legislation, and would give the chief executive his views on what might be done to prevent a clash between divergent party elements.

The vice president was expected, too, to find out how far Mr. Roosevelt is willing to go toward healing the wounds left by the Democratic

Unless there is a substantial increase in the number of Good Fellows in the next week, not much will be done in Appleton toward making Christmas happy for needy families. Contributions received since yesterday noon totaled only $14, and the total fund now is just a few cents over $77.

The response in the first week of this appeal to Good Fellows leaves the impression that the vast majority of Appleton's prosperous families are not much concerned whether there is any Christmas happiness in the homes of the poor. Having escaped the ravages of depression and illness and luck themselves, they are giving little or no thought to those who were not quite so fortunate. There are at least 4,000 families in Appleton who could be Good Fellows if they wanted to, and up to this noon only 31 have earned this designation.

The $77 turned in thus far will provide only about 25 baskets, and at least 200 are needed to take care of only the most deserving and the most needy families. At an average cost of $3 a basket, the Good Fellows will have to provide close to $550 more in the next seven days to help only the first two hundred families on the list—and that will leave many more that should be helped.

Perhaps if more people had to undergo the experience of the family of seven children who struggled along for months on an income of $20 a month until the father was able to get a WPA job at $70 a month they might be more inclined to remember the poor at Christmas time. There are seven children in this family, ranging from 17 years to a baby of six months. Until the father was able to get the WPA appointment, he was doing part time work, sometimes earning $15 and sometimes $20 a month. The family, as one can easily imagine, was absolutely destitute. Fuel was picked off city dumps, the only clothing was that given by sympathetic neighbors or from the city storehouse.

The oldest boy, who is in school, found a job last summer that paid

Loomis Starts Action to Determine Validity

Of State Law

Madison —(P)— Attorney General O. S. Loomis announced today he has started a case against two Milwaukee breweries to test the validity of the state law which forbids the furnishing of any equipment or property to tavern operators.

Loomis said he has filed petitions with the Milwaukee district court charging the Miller Brewing company and the Independent Milwaukee brewery with violations of the state law.

The prosecutions follow a John Doe investigation conducted during the last few months by Judge A. D. Hedding, Milwaukee, Judge Hedding later rendered an opinion that the law is full of loopholes and should be amended by the next legislature.

Loomis declared sufficient evidence was brought out at the John Doe hearing to warrant the starting of a test case.

The petitions alleged that the Miller company illegally furnished equipment to the tavern operated by Henry Martell at 4928 Villet street and that the Independent Brewery company unlawfully supplied Joseph Anderwald, owner of a tavern at Eighteenth and Villet streets.

New Lisbon Man Arrested

Confesses Clash With Victim in Quarrel Over Back Rent

Mauston, Wis.—(P)— District Attorney Charles Curran announced today Charles Waterman, 33, of New Lisbon, had confessed wounding and then beating his 64-year-old former landlord, Charles J. Koehn, who died Tuesday of his injuries, in a fight over back rent.

Waterman, arrested on a first degree murder warrant last night at the home of a relative about six miles from the scene of the shooting, was taken to a hospital here for treatment. His feet were frozen and he was suffering generally from exposure.

There was no indication when he would be arraigned.

The district attorney said Waterman admitted drawing his revolver and shooting Koehn as they struggled in the latter's car and then fighting with the older man on a highway between New Lisbon and Hustler after Koehn stopped the car.

Signs Of Struggle

There were signs of a terrific battle on the roadway.

Until a year ago, Waterman lived at Koehn's house, the landlord occupying a few rooms in the rear. Curran declined to disclose the amount of money involved in the argument, but said Waterman had more than enough money in his pockets when arrested to have paid off the bill.

Koehn was found lying on the highway last Monday night. The revolver which Curran said Waterman admitted was his, was found lying at his side.

Farmers who heard the shouts of two men ran to the scene. Another man was with Koehn as they approached, the farmers told Sheriff Preston McEvoy, but disappeared.

A warrant was issued for Waterman after Koehn died. Waterman sought sanctuary last night at the home of a cousin, Fred Waterman.

Notified Neighbor

Mrs. Fred Waterman ran from the home of a neighbor, Chris Hinkle, half a mile away. At her request, Hinkle did not telephone authorities, but drove to New Lisbon and notified Curran.

Deputies Al Chamberlain and Frank Berain, in the first car of a posse to arrive at the Waterman farm, were told by Mrs. Waterman that Charles was unarmed. They found him, they said, in a darkened bedroom, sitting on the bed.

An attorney said he had been engaged by Koehn to collect overdue rent from Waterman, who had rented a residence from Koehn.

Waterman said he had been wandering around the vicinity ever since Monday night and had eaten only a candy bar he had in his pocket. One night, he said, he slept in a haystack.

Psychiatrist Testifies in Murder Trial of Mrs.

Fern Dull

St. Joseph, Mich.—(P)— A defense psychiatrist testified today at the murder trial of Mrs. Fern Patricia Dull, that she apparently was "punch drunk" when she shot and killed Attorney William Holbrook, whom she considered her common-law husband, just two months ago today.

The witness, Dr. Walter M. Bartlett of Benton Harbor, Mich., also testified that Holbrook, whom he said he had known for four years, was "a psychopathic case and dangerous to the community."

The defense contends that Holbrook had beaten Mrs. Dull, 34-year-old blonde divorcee, on several occasions, and that she killed him Oct. 17 because she believed he was in an irrational and violent mood, and that her life was in danger.

H. T. Dewhurst, attorney for Mrs. Dull, calling attention to a swelling on her forehead which she contends resulted from a blow struck by Holbrook at the time of the shooting, and to previous testimony that Mrs. Dull stood over Holbrook's body, fanning it with her hat; that she seemed to be bewildered and dazed, asked Dr. Bartlett if she probably were then in a state of amnesia.

"Yes," the doctor replied. "I would say she was suffering from what we call 'punch drunkenness.'"

"In your opinion, was she able at that time to distinguish right from wrong?" Dr. Bartlett was asked.

"I would say she was not," he said.

Racine Man on Trial

In Indiana Slaying

Fort Wayne, Ind.—(P)— Adrian H. Miller, 31, of Racine, Wis., charged with the sex murder of Alice Gorton, 38, of Winchester, Ind., here last Oct. 31, will go on trial Feb. 7 in Allen circuit court.

The trial date was set yesterday after Judge Harry Hilgemann appointed three doctors to examine Miller, who recently entered a plea of insanity.

The indictment charged Miller attacked Miss Gorton and choked her to death with her silk undergarment.

Auto Travels From Side Road to be Struck by Fast Train

Dresser Junction, Wis.—(P)— The bodies of five persons killed when their automobile was struck by a train last night were held in a mortuary today while authorities investigated the crash.

Two other victims—Devillah Hazel, 30, whose wife and son were killed, and Carlos Bergeron, seven months old, whose parents died in the accident—were reported recovering from serious injuries at an Osceola, Wis., hospital.

The dead were Mrs. Hazel, 28; her son, Jimmy, 4; Charles Bergeron, 28; and Mrs. Bergeron, 19, all of Dresser Junction, and Miss Ruth Hill, 17, Taylors Falls, Minn.

The collision occurred, according to statements by Hazel and the train crew, when Hazel drove off a side road onto a crossing in front of the fast Duluth-to-Minneapolis Soo Line passenger train.

4 Die at Crash Scene

Trainmen took the victims to Osceola, where Mrs. Bergeron died. Mrs. Hazel, Jimmy, Miss Hill and Bergeron died at the scene of the accident.

Hazel suffered broken ribs, a brain concussion and severe cuts and bruises, and the Bergeron baby fractures of a leg and an arm and deep face cuts.

Polk County Coroner W. C. Parks, opening an investigation, said an inquest would be held next week. Walter Robinson, the engineer, and James Bowell, conductor of the train, were summoned to attend.

The victims were on their way to Taylors Falls to take Miss Hill, sister of Mrs. Hazel, to her home.

The parents of Devillah Hazel and his sister, Mrs. Bergeron, live about a quarter of a mile from the crossing. Mrs. Bergeron was injured at the same crossing 10 years ago.

Hutchins Quits

Exchange Post

Chicago University President

Resigns Position

As Governor

New York —(P)— The New York Stock Exchange today reported the resignation of one of its governors, Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago.

Usually informed Wall Street circles understood his resignation followed a dispute relating to possible further action in the case of Richard Whitney, former exchange president, now a prisoner in Sing Sing.

Hutchins' resignation was the first hint of an internal rift in the stock exchange's new regime since the liberal forces last spring swept into power on a program of "modernizing" the administration for closer cooperation with the federal authorities.

As part of the program of re-orienting the policies of the exchange for improvement in public relations, away from the old "private club" traditions, provision was made to give the public a direct voice on the governing board.

Besides Hutchins, the public representatives are General Robert E. Wood, president of Sears Roebuck and Company, Chicago, and Carl C. Conway, head of the Continental Can company, New York, who was chairman of a committee which recommended the administrative reform program after a study last winter.

The federal securities and exchange commission conducted an investigation of the collapse last March of the Whitney firm. Subsequently Whitney pleaded guilty to charges of larceny and was sentenced to prison.

Of Flaming Car; Companion Is

Killed in Plunge From Train

Connellsville, Pa.—(P)— A railway Express employee recounted today the tale of a wild ride on the side of a blazing express car which burned him and sent his companion hurtling to death.

Trapped by flames after an oil lamp exploded last night, the two men clung desperately to narrow ladders on the side of the car as the Baltimore and Ohio railroad train—its crew unaware of the fire—sped onward.

The dead man was E. D. Owens, 45, a railway express messenger, of New York City. The other, suffering from burns on the hands, was Martin Egan, of Connellsville.

The tragedy occurred about four miles from here.

Suspect Apparently

Eludes Posse in West Bend District

West Bend, Wis.—(P)— The sheriff's department reported today a West Allis youth sought for stealing an automobile apparently had escaped in another stolen car after eluding peace officers in a wild race in which shots were exchanged.

The youth, identified as being A.V.O.L. from a CCC camp at Florence, is wanted by West Allis police for larceny of an automobile and by Fox Point police for stealing license plates.

Deputy William Johnson and Kasimer Karius, neighbors on Highway 60 near Slinger, were riding in Johnson's automobile yesterday when they saw a man sitting in a car parked beside the road. Johnson stopped to investigate, and the other driver started up a rural road through Slinger.

The two cars raced through the village and across Highway 41. Meyer Rosenheimer, Big Cedar lake resort owner, said he went 70 miles an hour in his car to keep ahead of the pair.

Fires on Youth

Karius began firing at the fleeing motorist with Johnson's gun until they feared for Rosenheimer's safety.

Rosenheimer then skidded into his own driveway, the fleeing car following and ramming Rosenheimer's automobile when he stopped.

Johnson, leaping from his car, and the fleeing driver both drew pistols and fired, but neither was hit. The fugitive ran behind some cottages and escaped into the woods.

A posse sighted him once but he again escaped its bullets. He was reported seen twice thereafter, both times on foot.

The car which the fugitive abandoned contained, officials said, cartons of cigarettes, cigars, chewing gum, four flashlights, an expensive new overcoat, a blanket, a suitcase filled with clothing and a large milk can full of gasoline.

The abandoned car was reported owned by a Green Bay man and was stolen at Green Bay. It bore license plates stolen from a car owned by a Kaukauna farmer.

Later last night a sedan belonging to Oscar Klein, was stolen. Its license was 67,149.

Warrant Issued in

Fatal Auto Accident

Fond du Lac —(P)— Herbert C. Hamann, 50, Oshkosh, was charged with fourth degree manslaughter in a warrant issued in municipal court today in connection with the death of 8-year-old James Gebhardt.

The Gebhardt boy was crushed to death yesterday against a telephone pole when Hamann's automobile failed to negotiate a right-angled turn. The boy was playing tag in the yard at his home when the car mounted the curb.

Hamann pleaded innocent and his hearing was scheduled Dec. 22. Bail was fixed at $1,000.

Hamann operates a furniture repair shop here.

Fail to Reach Decision

Lima, Peru —(P)— Chiefs of all delegations failed today to reach a decision on one of the most important questions before the eighth Pan-American conference—the continental solidarity and defense resolution.

They arranged to meet again tonight and attempt to solve the problem which hourly was becoming more menacing to the tranquility of the conference.

Whether the conference will accomplish tangible results may depend on the outcome of their deliberations.

600 Alabama Felons

Freed for 2 Weeks

For Yule Paroles

Montgomery, Ala.—(P)— The metallic rasp of keys turned in steel-grated doors was music today to the ears of more than 600 Alabama convicts leaving prisons on Christmas parades of two weeks.

For the eleventh year, Alabama granted "good behavior" Christmas paroles for convicts, mostly long-termers whose wardens deemed them worthy of consideration and trust.

Convicted murderers, robbers and thieves were included among those rewarded. Many are serving life terms.

Governor Bibb Graves decreed that prisoners who had "A" conduct records for the last year, and who were recommended by wardens, could go home for Christmas, if they'd promise to come back. That's their only bond—their "word of honor" to return. No probation officers will check on them while they are away.

Graves inaugurated the Christmas parole system in 1927 when he released a few trustworthy convicts as an experiment. All returned and the following year he increased the number.

Case Against Chapple

Dropped; Bill Is Paid

Sturgeon Bay —(P)— The case against John B. Chapple, Ashland editor, who was charged with failing to pay a hotel bill in Sturgeon Bay, was dropped when the amount of the bill, $5, and costs of $3 were forwarded to the hotel by an assistant of Chapple. A warrant had been issued but he had instructions to pay all bills and insisted he had paid this one. The general opinion here is that the difficulty arose through a misunderstanding.

Thompson, Chicago's colorful cowboy mayor, announced his candidacy at a mass meeting Tuesday night.

Heil Opposed to Revamped Board If Costs Climb

May Recommend Repeal Of 1937 Reorganization Law

Madison—(P)—Governor-elect Julius P. Heil indicated definitely at the budget hearings yesterday that he would recommend repeal of the 1937 law which reorganized the state board of control if it will cost less money to operate the penal and charitable institutions under the "old system."

As the reorganization act now stands the board of control will continue to be in existence after Jan. 1, but its functions will be divided among three new state departments and new legislators said the board would have nothing to do.

The last legislature took the state prisons from the board and put them under a new department of corrections. Hospitals for the insane and training colonies for the feeble-minded were placed under a department of mental hygiene. Other board functions were transferred to a department of social adjustment through an executive order issued by Governor LaFollette.

The changes were recommended by a citizens committee which Governor LaFollette appointed.

Asks About Costs
Joseph McKeown, Milwaukee, who will be Heil's financial adviser during the next two years, asked Colonel John J. Hannan, board of control president, at yesterday's hearings whether it would cost less to operate the state institutions under the old arrangements.

Hannan said he thought it would, but that the new plan has not been in existence long enough to formulate a definite opinion.

After Hannan had made his presentation Grant Haas, Madison, who recently was selected as director of the department of mental hygiene, appeared before the governor-elect.

Assemblyman Milton T. Murray, Milwaukee Republican, stated for a post on the new legislative finance committee, asked Haas to state his background of qualifications for the position he holds. Haas said that for 10 years he had been a guidance director on Madison schools, a job which involved direction of "problem" children, and that he also had been a member of the board of control.

Assemblyman Maurice Fitzsimmons, Fond du Lac, a Democrat, asked Haas if he had not appeared before a committee of the 1937 legislature to advocate a new sterilization law for Wisconsin.

The hygiene director replied that he spoke for a committee which sponsored the sterilization bill.

"Are you using the knife now as you proposed," Fitzsimmons asked.

Haas responded that if the assemblyman was referring to finances the answer would be definite "yes."

Governor-elect Heil gave Colonel Hannan a "sales talk" on economy, at one time using a highway department blueprint which he said was a waste of money.

He declared that state department heads should see to it that even the most minor details of state expenditures are handled in such a way that unnecessary costs will be eliminated.

Referring once to the possibility of a repeal of the reorganization act, he said:

"Through the legislature, then, we can put things back the way they were. Oh, am I glad I have a good legislature."

The governor-elect received a call to go to Milwaukee while the hearings were in progress and announced he would have to leave before the budget of the department of mental hygiene could be finished.

He asked Assemblyman Murray to preside in his absence, but Director Haas asserted he wanted to present his budget to Heil personally.

The hearings will be resumed Tuesday.

Drug Firm and Its Officials Facing 10 Investigations lets started company officials on the inquiry which led to Coster's downfall.

7-A New York Stock Exchange committee, which began probing trading in the drug firm's securities.

8-The office of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, Grand jury proceedings in New York county were expected to follow.

As Coster, hopelessly trapped in a web that tangled him ever deeper, found his solution in death, authorities moved quickly against the three brothers whom the government charged played varying roles as his aids in building an empire of swindle.

$100,000 Bail
"George Dietrich," identified as George Dietrich, was held in $100,000 bail in New Haven, Conn., charged with conspiring to violate the securities act of 1934. He was assistant vice president and assistant treasurer of drug firm.

"George J. Vernard," Canadian agent of the corporation, was held in $100,000 bail on a similar charge after police forced their way into his Brooklyn home at pistol point to arrest him. His real name, authorities said, was Arthur Musica.

His trial in federal court here was fixed for Jan. 11.

"Robert Dietrich," or Robert Musica, youngest of the brothers, also was held in New York under $100,000 bail. Robert, who was employed as purchasing agent in the McKesson-Robbins plant at Bridgeport, was arraigned on a simple charge of violating the SEC act.

Robert was the only Musica brother not involved in the collapse of the $1,000,000 United States Hair company in 1934, a major financial scandal of the period, for which Coster-Musica assumed all blame. Robert was only nine years old then.

Mother, Sister Leave
Authorities said that the 76-year-old mother of Coster-Musica, known as Mrs. Mary Girard, and his sister, Marie Girard, had left their modest brick home at Westbury, N. Y., Wednesday "to enjoy a warmer climate."

Another sister, they said, was the wife of Robert Guey, a gardener on the estate of Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau at Wicopee, N. Y.

In its attempt to trace all the ramifications of the myriad Musica affairs, the United States attorney's office seized correspondence between Coster and Harry McKenzie, a Connecticut political figure.

McKenzie pleaded guilty recently to a charge of conspiring with 26 other men to "cheat and defraud" the city of Waterbury of more than a million dollars.

The Waterbury grand jury had cited McKenzie as having received $3,900 a year from the drug company to lobby on legislation.

Losses Not Estimated
Until the present far-reaching inquiries are completed, investigators said there was no way of estimating how high the losses to McKesson and Robbins stockholders would mount.

Henry D. Faxon, secretary and a director, said "the company is solvent and will go in in better shape than before." It is now undergoing reorganization.

When stock exchange trading in the firm's securities was suspended Dec. 7, McKesson and Robbins common stock was selling at $7.50 a share and its $3 preferred stock at $36.50 a share.

"Over the counter" prices yesterday were 75 cents a share bid, $1 asked for the common stock and $7.25 a share bid, $8 asked, for preferred stock.

At a hearing before Assistant Attorney General McCall yesterday, the recent sale of 15,042 shares of common stock by a company executive for $118,530 was disclosed.

An accountant for the state bureau of securities said most of the stock was in the name of Charles F. Michaels, executive vice president, and members of his family. It was sold between the last of October and Nov. 22, before the stock was suspended from the exchange.

Unmasked by Reed
Michaels is one of the trustees named to reorganize the drug company.

Backtracking Coster-Musica's devious trail, federal investigators found that former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri had unmasked Musica in 1919, when Musica was a special investigator for the New York attorney general's office under the name of "William Johnson."

Wisconsin to Observe Safety Activity Month

January will be Activity Safety month in Wisconsin, according to the state highway commission. As part of the program for the month, the commission urges police of counties and cities to prepare accident spot maps. Such maps are kept by both the Outagamie county and Appleton police. The commission also urges the making of a large spot map which may be set up at some public place so that motorists may study dangerous corners, intersections and curves.

Federal agents checked back to the years between 1920 and 1922 when Coster emerged as the dominant figure in Girard and Company, hair tonic manufacturers. They checked, too, the apparent wide discrepancies between the comparative small amounts of alcohol used in Girard products and the large withdrawals made for the firm's accounts from government bond.

Profits rolled up for Girard and Company and eventually Coster was able to raise $1,000,000 necessary to merge his thriving business with the reputable and established firm of McKesson and Robbins.

Check of School Buses Planned by Traffic Officers

Inspection Will be Safety Precaution in County

School buses and automobiles engaged in transporting pupils to rural schools in the county will be inspected by county traffic officers and their drivers impressed with the need of safe practices, particularly at railroad crossings, according to Captain Charles Steidl.

The inspection by the county officers has been requested by West A. Burdick, director of safety of the state highway commission, who has sent similar requests to county traffic officers and chiefs of police throughout the state.

While there are only three school buses in the county, about a dozen persons are being paid to transport pupils in their cars, Captain Steidl said. Henry J. VanStraten, county superintendent, is cooperating with the program and will furnish the county police with the names of all drivers transporting school pupils.

A set of rules on the mechanical fitness of school buses, warning that state aid would be withheld from schools which failed to meet the requirements, was sent out last spring by John Callahan, state superintendent of public instruction.

The present inspection is to check compliance with the regulations.

Among the items to be checked are: whether the vehicle carries any distinctive identification as a school bus; whether it has commercial or home-made body; whether it has an emergency door; the number of windows and whether they are of safety glass; whether the seats are padded and whether the bus is equipped with a heater.

A check also will be made on the condition of tires, lights, brakes, windshield wipers, defrosters, horns, rear-view mirrors, fire extinguishers, flares and flags and emergency kits.

Monopoly Group To Analyze Law

Clayton Anti-Trust Act Will Come Under Scrutiny Next Month

Washington—(P)—Members of the federal monopoly committee said today they would seek to analyze strong and weak points of the Clayton anti-trust act soon after they resume hearings next month.

The federal trade commission, which administers certain provisions of the act, is expected to make a general presentation of evidence relating to monopolistic trade practices. The committee completed hearings yesterday on the use of patents in the automobile and glass-container industries.

The justice department now is preparing memoranda on the use of patents as a restraining influence on trade in other industries.

Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general, said the department had selected the automobile and glass container industries for hearings because it considered the former a typical example of "non-aggressive" use of patents and the latter typical of an "aggressive" use.

At the close of the glass hearings, Chairman O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) of the senate committee, said in a formal statement that the industry had employed patents in such a way as to create "a sort of private NRA."

Some of the testimony, he added, showed the south and west had been hindered in developing natural resources because of "artificial restraints."

Associated Press Will Move Without Disrupting Service

New York—(P)—The nerve center of the world's greatest news association is being shifted six blocks without the skip of a pulse beat.

It will happen early one morning soon when the New York offices of The Associated Press, which have been at 383 Madison avenue for 15 years, are moved four blocks north and two west to 50 Rockefeller Plaza.

In a private message to the entire Associated Press staff respecting the occupancy of the new building Kent Cooper, General Manager, said:

"The Associated Press building to which the New York offices shortly are to move is a monument to its newspaper members and its employees. Through ninety years they have mutually striven that an accurate, unbiased chronicle of events, interestingly recorded, be available to newspaper readers."

What you have aided in accomplishing in the past must continue into the future so that "By The Associated Press" shall prevail as long as the rights of a free press continue to make possible an uncensored, unfettered collection and dissemination of truthful news."

Matter Of Planning
The actual telegraph wire cut-over is a matter of pulling a plug. But behind that split second of action is a plan which took months to evolve. Generals never worked more carefully over a vital campaign than technicians and officials over the minute details of this transfer.

Out of the New York office of The AP runs a trunk wire system which serves more than 100 important news centers of the United States. Other trunk and supplemental wires branching from these nerve centers and making up 285,000 miles of leased telegraph wires reach about 1,400 AP member newspapers.

From the New York office also run a financial wire, sports wire, the South wire, the New York city wire, the New York state wire and the Metropolitan circuit. It has foreign cable connections which bring the world's news to America, two dozen trunk telephone connections, and the wires of the City News Association.

Also centered in New York are the AP Wirephoto System which hurries news pictures to AP members with telegraphic speed; the AP Feature Service; and the Teletype Service.

Then there is working equipment for employees, great files of news photographs and negatives and much else besides—125 truckloads of physical equipment alone. Every piece will be ticketed in advance by the movers who thus will be able to set each down in its assigned place.

Double Check
As the zero hour of 3 a. m. approaches, and all wires have been shut down as usual except for the general trunk, duplicate apparatus already set up in the new building is cut in. Service in both the new and the old building is simultaneous for a time while technicians make sure that all is in readiness.

It sounds simple but its complexities may be gauged by the circumstances that there are few men in the world with the technical skill to sort the 2,000 pair of wires which run through a trench in the new quarters and clear through a giant switchboard.

On the fourth floor are located all wires, the local, foreign, sports, financial and photo departments, financial and photo departments, The AP Feature Service, the Sunday service, the library and file and the engraving plant.

The fifth floor houses an experimental laboratory and the great foreign news agencies which exchange service with The AP. The Canadian Press, Havas, Reuters, Dome, Tass, and the New York offices of Le Nation, Buenos Aires, General and executive offices are on the seventh floor.

The new quarters are soundproof, air-conditioned, indirectly lighted. And a new clock system brings split second timing directly from the Washington Naval observatory.

Will Abandon Project if Legislators Reduce Highway Income

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—The proposed relocation of highway 41 and the continuation of the development of a superhighway from Green Bay to Milwaukee with belt-lines to avoid the principal cities has advanced as far as it is likely to advance for the present, it appeared today.

The proposed relocation has already been approved by the Winnebago and Fond du Lac county boards, after much discussion at the recent annual sessions, while the Washington county board, which is also involved in the projected reconstruction, has indicated that it is receptive to the idea.

The next big obstacle is that of finance, funds for the tremendous outlay which is presumed in the contemplated superhighway job. None of the counties has yet gone into that phase of the problem, while the state highway commission has merely discussed it.

Moreover it is exceedingly unlikely that the state commission will go any farther until the highway policy of the new Republican state administration which will come up into power in the state capital on January 2 is definitely formulated.

Current discussions by Republican leaders which indicate that two alternative methods of reducing the amount of funds available to the highway commission are being studied are not conclusive to extensive financial commitments by the commission.

Some Republicans have been elected on the promise, among others, that they would work to reduce the motor license registration fees to a flat $5, which if approved, would automatically remove millions of dollars from the highway department's budget, which operates on such fees and gasoline taxes. Others, including the governor-elect, have thrown out the suggestion that the present fee and gas tax system will be retained, but that large amounts of the receipts may be diverted by legislative action to general state purposes.

Should either of these suggestions become fact, it is likely that the superhighway project would be abandoned entirely for several years.

Street Traffic Will be Rerouted Over Dorr Street Span

New London—Traffic over the Pearl street bridge will be shut off Monday and dismantling of the old structure will begin, according to the bridge superintendent. Work was completed yesterday on the pedestrian bridge one block downstream and all motor traffic will be routed over the Dorr street bridge until completion of the new bridge some time next summer.

A steel motor crane arrived by rail this week to aid in the new construction and now materials are arriving steadily. The new $75,000 bridge will provide a 30-foot roadway compared to the present width of 17 1/2 feet.

The pedestrian bridge extends across the Wolf river at Smith street on the south side and St. John's place on the north side. It is lighted and provides a 5-foot walk with a 4-foot guide rail on each side.

New London—Several hundred persons attended the 1-hour Christmas program presented by the Washington High school dramatics class in collaboration with the band and mixed choir at the school auditorium last night. The program featured the play, "Why the Chimes Rang."

The band provided preliminary music with the selection "Jubilee March" and also played "Christmas Fantasy." The mixed choir sang "Calm Be Thy Sleep" and the eight-fold "Alleluia," besides providing musical background for the drama.

Principals in the play were Gene and Dick Wyman as two peasant brothers; Howard Fox as their practical uncle; and Patricia Egan as the old woman who the older brother befriended. In a colorful pageant depicting the bringing of gifts to the temple for the Christ Child appeared Harry Herres as the priest on a decorative altar; Alan Fonstad as a rich young man; Alan Ziebur as a courtier; Marjorie Lathrop as a beautiful woman; Richard Demming as an old man; Valeria Wangelin as a lovely young girl; and Alice Stanley as an angel.

Colman Stars in Current Picture

'If I Were King' Playing Now at Rio: 'Ferdinand' Also on Bill

Currently featured at the Rio theater is a triple attraction pre-Christmas holiday program. Ronald Colman in "If I Were King," Tommy Kelly in "Peck's Bad Boy at the Circus," and Walt Disney's "Ferdinand and the Bull" are the features of the bill which plays thru Tuesday.

Roaring down the centuries comes the story of one of the grandest love-rogues of all time—Francis Villon—whose life story at last gets the screen treatment it deserves in "If I Were King."

Ronald Colman, whose great romantic characterizations have made motion picture history, is cast as Villon, one of the most colorful fellows ever to strut across the pages of history—Villon, playboy, a lover and statesman, who held France in the palm of his hand for one glorious week, only to be banished when he gave his heart to a royal princess he dared not love!

To support Colman, who now tops his performance in "Lost Horizon" and "A Prisoner of Zenda," Lloyd selected one of the year's biggest cast. Miss Dee, as the princess who dared give her heart to a gutter oen, plays her first role since "Wells Fargo." Basil Rathbone will be seen as the eccentric and crafty Louis XI. Colman's tavern sweetheart is played by Ellen Drew.

All the thrills of the "big top" the color and excitement are captured with exceptional realism in "Peck's Bad Boy With the Circus," built around George W. Peck's renowned boy hero of American literature.

"Peck's Bad Boy with the Circus" brings to the screen Tommy Kelly in his first picture since his debut in "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer." Ann Gillis has the top featured role, with Edgar Kennedy, Benita Hume, Spanky MacFarland and Louise Beavers in important characterizations.

Added to the program as a special feature is the sensational achievement, Walt Disney's "Ferdinand and the Bull," in Technicolor, an adaptation of the famous best seller by Munro Leaf and Robert Lawson, with a fine musical score and a plot narration.

'Brother Rat' Booked At Appleton Theater

"Brother Rat," the gay comedy of life in a military school, which ran on a roadshow stage for eighteen consecutive months and had three road companies successfully touring the country at the same time, is now a picture and will have its first local showing December 24 for three days at the Appleton Theater.

It stars Wayne Morris and Priscilla Lane, two young stars who already have several sensational successes. A considerable portion of the picture was made on the grounds of the Virginia Military Institute at Lexington, Va., and the entire cadet corps of that famous and historic school, 700 strong, took part. V. M. I. has long been known as the "West Point of the South." It was the training place of that great Confederate general "Stonewall" Jackson. The Institute authorities gave the producers and the Director, William Keighley, complete co-operation.

Due to the limitless scope of the camera, "Brother Rat" as a picture is said to surpass the stage version. The drills and sports and dormitory life of the cadets are really shown in all their picturesqueness instead of merely being suggested, as was the case behind the footlights.

A "Rat" in VMI parlance is a freshman, or "pieb" as they are called at West Point. Those who go through the four years training together are called "Brother Rats." Hence the title. They are loyal to each other through thick and thin. This story revolves around the misadventures of one of the lads who has disobeyed a rule of the Institute and has secretly taken himself a bride. Not only that, but he's about to become a father. His pals stick to him and get him out of his jam. Eddie Albert, recruited from the New York stage play, has this part. Lovely little Jane Bryan is the girl he marries. Wayne Morris and Priscilla Lane have a sweet idyllic boy-and-girl romance, though of course they can't marry until the cadets have been graduated. Others in the splendid cast include John-

IN FILM AT APPLETON THEATER

Heralded as one of the outstanding productions of the season, "The Shining Hour," with Joan Crawford, Margaret Sullivan, Robert Young and Melvyn Douglas opens today at the Appleton Theater for a four-day showing.

Based on the New York stage success by Keith Winter, the drama presents Joan Crawford in her first dancing role since "Dancing Lady." "The Shining Hour" is a story of a dancing star who attempts to escape from her surrounding through marriage with a Kansas farmer. The resulting family entanglements provide a plot rich in dramatic action. "Gangster's Boy" is the companion feature on this program and stars Jackie Cooper and Lucy Gilman as a romantic juvenile team. The story concerns a high school teacher who is blackballed when his racketeer father comes to town.

Appleton Showing 'The Shining Hour'

Joan Crawford, Margaret Sullivan, Young and Douglas in Cast

With a star-studded cast including Joan Crawford, Margaret Sullivan, Robert Young, Melvyn Douglas and Fay Bainter, "The Shining Hour" opens at the Appleton Theater today for a 4 day engagement.

"The Shining Hour" presents Miss Crawford in a dancing role for the first time since she starred in "Dancing Lady." Now she is teamed with Tony DeMarco, of the famous theatrical troupe. Miss Crawford plays a role which parallels her own career as a Broadway dancer and is reminiscent of her first starring pictures in dancing roles.

The story is a dramatic account of the life and love of a fascinating Broadway cabaret star who marries into a highly respectable family of the middle-western farm country. We see the glitter of Broadway at night and join with the well-groomed revelers in the clubs and bright spots—then we travel with this lovely girl to the tranquil scene on a Kansas farm.

But the calm is just before the storm. She is unwelcome there and her problem is to convince her bridegroom's family that she is not what they take her to be. Joan Crawford literally relives parts of her own life. Melvyn Douglas is the serious young husband and Robert Young appears as his brother. Miss Sullivan is the kind-hearted wife of the younger brother and Fay Bainter plays the dramatic role of Hannah, the embittered spinster sister of the men.

Here is a human story of ordinary people in a situation which might occur in any household. It was a dramatic success as a stage play and with the greater resources of Hollywood it becomes even a finer picture.

The second feature in this program is "Gangster's Boy," starring Jackie Cooper. Others in the cast are Tommy Wonder, Louise Lorimer, Selmer Jackson, Lucy Gilman and Betty Blythe.

The story concerns a high school boy, played by Jackie Cooper, who is outstanding in his school and nie Davis, Jane Wiman, Ronald Reagan, Gordon Oliver, Henry O'Neill, and Louise Beavers. The second feature on this program is "Christmas Carol." The cast includes Reginald Owen as Ebenezer Scrooge, Gene Lockhart as Bob Cratchit, Kathleen Lockhart as Mrs. Cratchit, Terry Kilburn as Tiny Tim. Indelibly associated with the holiday spirit the picture brings to the world a message of "Peace on Earth Good Will Toward Men."

Ross, Nolan Star In Prison Film

'Prison Farm' Will Play At Elite Theater Monday and Tuesday

Shirley Ross, Lloyd Nolan and John Howard head the list of Hollywood favorites who play leading roles in "Prison Farm," Paramount's dramatic story of a girl's harrowing sacrifices for a man who does not deserve her love, which will be shown at the Elite Theatre on Monday and Tuesday, Bargain Days.

Miss Ross, the charming young actress who scored such a success recently when she sang "Thanks for the Memory" with Bob Hope in the "Big Broadcast of 1938," now turns from diamonds to denim to play her first big dramatic role as the young girl who comes face to face with shocking conditions in a corrupt prison camp because of her love for a worthless man.

The role of Miss Ross's gunman-sweetheart is played by stalwart Lloyd Nolan, and John Howard portrays the fighting young prison doctor who eventually succeeds to Nolan's place in the girl's affections. J. Carroll Naish and Porter Hall will be seen again in the sort of roles for which they are famous, as two of the corrupt prison officials, while Ann Q. Nilsson, the great Swedish star of the silent days, is a matron. Others in the cast are Esther Dale and Mary Boloy.

'THE TEXANS' TO PLAY AT ELITE

The first great screen epic dealing with the Reconstruction South since D. W. Griffiths made motion picture history with "The Birth of a Nation" in 1915 will be seen in "The Texans," which opens at the Elite Theater for 3 days starting next Wednesday. Joan Bennett, Randolph Scott and May Robson head an all-star cast in a stirring story of the South's attempt to free herself from carpet-bagger government and follow her own destiny in the dark days after the War Between the States.

MovieLand Its People and Products

By Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood — There's significance in the hard-boiled orders issued by most of the major studios this year, banning all publicity about the lavish Christmas gifts purchased and received by stars.

Those orders are based on a study of last Yuletide's fan mail. Mr. and Mrs. Public, the checkers-up discovered, are human enough to resent the extravagances of Hollywood's fair-haired children.

Fidler Hundreds of letters received after the press broadcast of last year's Christmas spending spree, were from homes in which children had gone without presents — and a parent whose poverty has made him disappoint his children at Christmas-time, is very apt to go Bolshevik when he reads about a movie star giving her lap dog a $500 collar.

I think Hollywood is belatedly wise in putting a damper on such publicity — but the public, at the same time, should cheer star extravagances, rather than resent them. These people, unlike many big business men whose incomes are even larger, keep money in circulation. Every dollar they spend puts a few cents of profit in the pocket of merchants, wholesalers and manufacturers. If the majority of America's wealthy men and women lived as extravagantly as do the stars of Hollywood, the depression would soon be only a memory. Just out of curiosity, I wish some clever statistician would compute the number of workmen who are kept in jobs, indirectly, by a Hollywood celebrity who spends $50,000 a year.

MEMORIES THAT BLESS AND BURN: When a shell-shocked veteran ran amok during the filming of a World War battle scene and tried to bayonet the other extras. When an unruly horse pitched Binnie Barnes into a clump of cactus. When Eric Linden left Hollywood and a brilliant career because the girl he loved was marrying somebody else. When I spent my most miserable evening trying to console Dick Arlen after the death of his pal, Leo Nomis, killed while stuntng a plane in "Sky Brides." When Barbara La Marr won a $100 bet by kicking out the lights in an overhead fixture at a Hollywood party.

When Richard Dix, working on a desert location, went swimming in a railroad water tank. When Marie Dressler, already doomed by her doctors, fainted on the set and came to, begging press representatives present to help keep her condition secret. When Sidney Chaplin, during the production of a sea story, persuaded me to drink a quart of Champagne to cure mal de mer—and I spent the next two days in bed. When Wally Beery passed up a world premiere to date a Hollywood salesgirl—and brought down the wrath of his studio. When I solemnly advised a guy named Errol Flynn to get out of Hollywood because he hadn't a chance in pictures.

When Mabel Normand, having no cash in her purse, gave a needy extra a diamond ring worth several hundred dollars. When Pola Negri walked out on a Coconut Grove party where Vince Barnett pulled one of his famous "ribs." When Bing Crosby entered a contest, conducted to find the best double for him — and lost. When Ann Harding, whose fear of the water amounts to a phobia, plunged into her pool to prove to her little girl that it was "safe."

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's ostrich-like ban on publicity about its glamorous girls smoking has given cause for more than one chuckle but none better than the anecdote told me today by a certain magazine writer. He was interviewing Joan Crawford and she mentioned her smoking habit. The publicity department representative who was sitting in, stopped the interview. "You mustn't write that," said she. "Our stars do not smoke for publication." "Aren't you a bit late?" Joan grinned. "Last month you photographed me for a full page cigarette ad!"

I don't suppose Wong Chin, being just a laborer in the lettuce fields, had ever earned twenty-five dollars in a month until two weeks ago when a movie troupe set up their cameras across the road to make location scenes. But with the troupe came Fate. Wong Chin's mongrel dog dashed pell-mell into the scene, wrigled appealingly at the leading lady's feet and the director had an inspiration. "We need that dog in the picture," he said — and ever since Wong Chin has been drawing thirty-five dollars a day from the company paymaster. He's a bit bewildered, but his toil worn face is happy.

Speaking of dogs—Hugh Herbert with the oddest looking mutt that's ever been seen in these parts on leash. Bob Hope surveyed the animal from stem to stern, then asked with considerable awe, "My God, Huh, WHAT kind of a dog is that?" Huh looked at him reprovingly. "Shhh," he whispered, "I don't want to hurt his feelings—he thinks he's a collier!" (Copyright, 1938)

Rialto Will Show 'Mad Miss Minton'

Barbara Stanwyck, Henry Fonda in Mystery-Comedy-Romance

Blending mystery, comedy and a romance, RKO Radio's "The Mad Miss Minton," which opens Thursday and Friday at the Rialto theatre, Kaukauna, stars Barbara Stanwyck and Henry Fonda in a sparkling story that offers the two favorites some of their finest opportunities. Miss Stanwyck has the role of an irresponsible, thrill-seeking society girl whose escapades arouse the ire of a serious minded young newspaper editor. He attacks her through the columns of his paper.

Because of the reputation she and her debutante pals have gained for their pranks, Miss Stanwyck is disbelieved by police when she reports finding a body in a deserted house. Enraged at the attitude of both the police and of Fonda, she decides to solve the mystery by herself, and with the loyal aid of her group of feminine companions, she sets to work.

J. P. McEvoy points to Shirley Temple's latest 20th Century-Fox picture, "Just Around The Corner," to illustrate his conviction, set forth in the Post article, that Shirley is a consummate actress with a definite love for the art of acting and a talent that amazingly increases as she gets older.

McEvoy speaks on good authority. Always close to the theatre and the screen, he collaborated with Ethel Hill and Darrell Ware in writing the screen play for "Just Around The Corner."

Opening Sunday and announced as having the most original scenario thus far conceived for a Shirley Temple picture, the film concerns the hilarious but happy consequences which arise when Shirley confuses a wealthy old banker (whose name is "Uncle Sam" Henshaw) with the lean and bewhiskered gentleman who is the symbol of our national character.

Production Chief Darryl F. Zanuck has surrounded his Number One star with a fine cast, including Charles Farrell, Joan Davis, Amanda Duff (a newcomer to films about whom you will probably hear much more later), Bill Robinson, Bert Lahr, Franklin Pang-

Lawless West Lives In Story of Arizona

The lawless West lives and breathes again in "Partners of the Plains," Clarence E. Mulford's latest "Hopalong Cassidy" romance, showing at the Elite Theater today and Sunday. William Boyd and his hard-riding buckaroos ride off across the wide open plains to high adventure in this story of love and revenge.

San Jacinto National Forest, where the picture was made, furnishes a background of glorious and unspoiled scenery. To reconstruct the raw, untamed town of Arroyo Grande, where much of the action takes place, a careful study of conditions in frontier Arizona was made. The hundred spirited cowboys ridden by "Hoppy's" boys were furnished by several California ranches.

The typically Western cast of "Partners of the Plains" includes Gwen Gaze, Russell Hayden, Harvey Clark, John Warburton and John Echols. Les Selander has directed this Harry Sherman production.

5 Valley Scouts Get First Class Ranking

First class ranking has been awarded five valley council scouts, it was reported today by Walter Dixon, executive.

Following are the scouts and their troops: George Weinfurter, Jr., Troop 11, Appleton; Karl Loeschner, Troop 14, Menasha; Carl Voeltz, Troop 47, Wittenberg; William Van Lieshout and Tom Bauer, Troop 31, Kaukauna.

Nine scouts have received second class rank. They are as follows: Jim Fogrover, Jerry Driscoll, Robert Fomon, Troop 6, Appleton; Donald Clough, George Kronschnabel, Troop 9, Menasha; James Schoettler, Troop 16, Appleton; Jimmie Burich, Troop 46, Brillion; Dick McCarty, Jerome Faust, Troop 31, Kaukauna.

born, Cora Witherspoon, Bennie Bartlett and others. It is said that Zanuck first got the idea for a new kind of Shirley Temple story when, some months ago, he foresaw a general upswing in our national economic life. Together with McEvoy he discussed the general outlines of a story in which Shirley's miraculous talents would be focused on the commendable purpose of helping to restore Uncle Sam — both figuratively and literally — to his former, prosperous self.

Appointments to Cabinet Likely To be Personal

Lawrence Discusses Hopkins as Secretary of Commerce

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—There's an old rule that a president of the United States ought to be permitted to appoint anybody he pleases to his cabinet and that, unless something involving personal integrity arises, the senate is expected to confirm his choices.

Today there are two vacancies in the cabinet—the attorney general and the secretary of commerce—to be filled before the end of the year. Already the discussion in political-minded Washington turns on whether the appointments will be construed as a turn on the part of the administration toward the left or the right.

Such speculation is unwarranted. Both appointments undoubtedly will be personal. They will represent the president's conception of reward for faithful service. That's what has always been true, except that usually the reward is for party or political service, whereas in the present instances, it doubtless will be a case of reward for official service performed by some of his associates in the New Deal during the last five years.

Lawrence

Thankless Job

Certainly that will be the case if Harry Hopkins is made secretary of commerce. The job of WPA administrator has been a thankless one. It has required continuous work under the most trying circumstances. Public criticism of the WPA for becoming intermingled in politics should be no means be centered on Mr. Hopkins alone. The day the United States senate refused to accede to President Roosevelt's request that the state WPA administrators should be free from politics, and insisted instead on requiring that the selections be confirmed by the senate, politics entered into the problem by the front door. Many a senator had a voice in selecting the WPA director for his state, and politics crept into the WPA quite naturally after that.

This is not saying that Mr. Hopkins' comments on the Iowa political situation, for example, were justified, but it does mean that Mr. Hopkins' qualifications for secretary of commerce have nothing to do with the controversy over the way the WPA should be reorganized. It is doubtless going to be reconstructed.

Appointments

As for the department of commerce or any other post in the cabinet, presidents can and often do appoint prominent political leaders. Some of them make excellent cabinet secretaries. Thus, Cordell Hull, the popular and able secretary of state, was for many years chairman of the Democratic National committee.

If Mr. Hopkins should be made secretary of commerce, as is currently reported, the business world will doubtless, at first impression, think that this is a radical or at least unfriendly act toward business, which would like naturally to see a man from the active business ranks appointed. But it is an erroneous assumption to declare that Mr. Roosevelt in this particular appointment would be acting toward business in any friendly or unfriendly way. The truth is he likes Harry Hopkins and has unbounded confidence in him. If therefore, he chooses to give the department of commerce post to Mr. Hopkins, it may easily mean that business men and the business viewpoint will have a better conduit of expression of their views than they have had before.

Clearly, if the business and advisory council, for example, which is attached to the department of commerce, should now formulate proposals and if Harry Hopkins concurs in them, the business group will find a better and more vigorous champion at the White House than they have ever had. Unhappily, one of the complaints about Secretary Roper's regime was that he did not have the confidence of the left wing in the New Deal and hence was not as powerful in administration policy as he should have been or as Mr. Hopkins would be.

Mr. Hopkins has had an unusual administrative experience in the government. To administer the WPA is a task comparing with many of the war-time jobs, both in the intensity of the work and the novelty of the problems. It is said that, if the appointment is made, the president will wish to give Harry Hopkins a chance to demonstrate his administrative capacity in some work other than public spending.

Biggest Job

Everybody hereabouts recognizes that the biggest job of the next 18 months is to get the economic recovery machine going. This means a meshing of business and government action. If Harry Hopkins makes a success of it, and the business men feel he has accomplished something affirmative in the oft-talked-about but little-realized government-and-business cooperation policy, it will be because the man now being suggested for the department of commerce portfolio will have brought left and right wings together in a practical way. The appointment of Harry Hopkins to be secretary of commerce, therefore, may be the president's way of bringing business and government together in a manner that will carry confidence with the left wing in his party, and insure at the same time some of the revisions of existing legislation which business men feel are absolutely essential and prerequisite to economic recovery.

Correction of the New Deal laws by friends rather than enemies, but correction, nevertheless, may be confidently anticipated as the theme of the coming session of congress.

Work of Advisory Council Is Help Toward Sound Legislation

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—How are you going to get complicated, technical legislation out of a congress of inexperienced laymen whose first business is to play politics and be re-elected?

One way is the "rubber stamp" method. In this administration, as in others, bills have been drafted in the executive departments and thrown at congress to be signed on the dotted line. Roosevelt did that with much of his emergency legislation. Under Hoover the original RFC act was drafted at the direction of Eugene Meyer, then head of the federal reserve board, and congress was pressed to pass it in a hurry.

Time and again executive departments send drafts of measures to senators and representatives for introduction. Often legislation is drafted at the request of members in congress. Don't forget either that Washington swarms with lobbyists who peddle draft bills around the capitol, looking for legislators who will introduce them. Usually it is possible to find someone who will lead the fight as the front for the lobby group. Senator Tydings of Maryland and Rep. Patman of Texas have done heroic service as rubber stampers for such lobbies.

Whether bill-drafting is done by executive departments or by private lawyers representing lobbying groups, the practice gets its hold from the fact that any senator or representative has countless chores to do, or may be lazy, incompetent or lacking in the necessary technical information. So into that vacuum rushes the stream of bills prepared outside of the halls of congress.

It sounds fine to tell congress to be independent and write its own legislation. But congress is bound by circumstances to lean on outside help, good or bad, public-spirited or selfish.

This practice has been turned into model procedure in connection with social security legislation. The method used in connection with this legislation provides a model of practice which could well be employed generally to improve the processes of law-making under our system.

Committee Worked For Year on Security Law

Back in 1934, when Roosevelt decided he needed social security legislation to take the wind out of Huey Long's share-the-wealth movement and Townsend's crackpot scheme, a presidential committee, including numerous experts, was set up. It worked for a year in framing a measure. Then long hearings were held by house and senate committees, changes were made, and by the time congress was ready to vote, it had been exposed to all of the best informed thought in the country.

Still, the law wasn't perfect and a year and a half ago, another group was set up to consider revisions of the act. This advisory committee, which has just completed its report, was created jointly by the senate finance committee and the social security board. It is composed of six labor union officials, six employers and 13 members representing the public, mostly experts from universities.

Names of the employer group are indicative of the solid type of personnel on the advisory committee: Marion B. Folsom, treasurer, Eastman Kodak Co.; Walter D. Fuller, president Curtis Publishing Co.; Jay Iglauer, vice-president, Hallie Brothers, Cleveland; M. Albert Linton, president, Provident Mutual Life Insurance Co.; E. R. Stettinius, Jr., chairman, U. S. Steel; Gerard Swope, president, General Electric.

Approaches England's Communism Method

This advisory council and the procedure in connection with it approach the royal commission method in England which has produced such sound results in complex social legislation. It brings to bear on the problem, the most competent brain available. Findings of such a group are, because of their source, entitled to carry exceptional weight.

If you have a rubber stamp congress, that is the way to feed it. Even if you have an independent congress, it is still a service to have the benefit of the considered judgment of such a composite, high-calibre group. That is particularly so with

PATRONAGE IN WISCONSIN

There are cheers, albeit feeble, in Wisconsin's Democratic organization over Gentleman Jim Farley's decree that patronage shall go to Democrats. The cheers are not feeble because Farley's word is doubted as he keeps his word too honorably for his position, but the life is so nearly gone from the once robust organization in Wisconsin it can hardly make a squeak. The pap is coming but pretty late. In fact it is like throwing a sirloin to an Arctic explorer who has been starving on leather soup for months waiting for succor.

Of course political plums, patronage as it is called, belongs to the party in power and is not only generally distributed through the organization but should be treated that way unless the local leaders are incompetent or dishonest.

Mr. Roosevelt did not see fit to keep the Democratic party in Wisconsin in a virile condition. He was willing to toss it to the wolves any day, just as he bled the Democrats white up in Minnesota. But now the scenery takes on quite a different color. The year 1940 is coming into view. There will be a Democratic National Convention. At least that is the supposition. Presumably, too, the Wisconsin Democratic organization will have a certain bunch of votes in its hands for use in that convention. It is better to get right with the right kind of people. How can our noble ruler control that convention, either for a third nomination or for his friends, unless he can obtain obedience to the tune of the cracked whip?

Mr. Farley's magnificent gesture finds the Democratic party in Wisconsin in the hospital. But the dollar is still a potent weapon, and authority, the right to public position, still spurs ambitious men forward.

That the deal is as raw as a broken blister will not bring a tinge of blush to any of the participant's faces. But sometimes swaps of this sort or a return to what might have been normal relations under ordinary conditions, become too repulsive for the voters' stomachs and the voters haven't delicate stomachs either.

MRS. ROOSEVELT INTERPRETS THE LAW

Mrs. Roosevelt has reversed a ruling of the Treasury Department supported by Government attorneys that the money she earns and turns over to charities is tax exempt and declares that hereafter she will first pay the tax and give the balance to the objects she wishes to sustain.

The case is altogether too pretty to let pass without reviewing the facts. For it was an object and worthless ruling by the Government's attorneys made designably to please the first lady and to put her family in fact above the law that started the dispute.

Our laws do not permit a person to give his income away without paying taxes irrespective of the worthiness of the gift. A contribution to be deductible must not exceed 15 per cent of one's taxable income.

It is easy to see that this law was necessary in a country that has such a terrible appetite for taxes, for the nation comes first and its tax law must be so written that a heavy stream of dollars is kept flowing into the Treasury.

Of course, when Mrs. Roosevelt was first told by the Government lawyers she need pay no tax at all, the lady had never read the law and was unfamiliar with its language or the kinks the Justice Court playboys were putting into it. Recently, she had an opportunity to read the statute itself. She said that upon reading the law she made up her mind that it was her duty to pay the taxes out of her income before giving the latter away. Mrs. Roosevelt hasn't any particular bent to the law but she can read plain English and understand it. And she appears to be sufficiently honest to instinctively dislike corkscrew interpretations put upon plain words by some fawning underlings just to play up to the first family.

We suggest that the sheepskin issued to the Treasury lawyer when he graduated from college be turned over to Mrs. Roosevelt. She is more worthy of it than the one to whom it was originally issued.

A PRINCE GROWS UP

Prince Alexis Obolensky, present residence New York, but a member of the Russian Nobility Association, found himself recently face to face with as tough an assignment almost as being chased out of Moscow by the Soviets.

The Prince obtained a minor role in a stage show in America's great metropolis. It seemed appropriate that he should fill the part of a Soviet Commissar in "Leave It To Me," a comedy that treats of an American ambassador to Russia, and is said to be quite a takeoff on Wisconsin's Davies.

At any rate, the other members of New York's chapter of the Russian Nobility Association did not take at all kindly to a Prince working, and were somewhat outraged to have him act the part of a Soviet official. The Prince replied that he had adopted a stage name and no one would know of his degradation had the others kept quiet. He stressed the fact also that a little check coming in every week was an important factor even in the life of a Prince and that he had been in America long enough to become rather thrilled at the idea that he was earning his living.

So the Prince quit the Russian Nobility Association. He may rejoin again of course because his friends are there in great numbers, but it is just as likely that with the passage of time and a variety of experiences, the Prince will learn that a nobility association exists in name only unless men do noble things. And what is more noble than to earn one's living if one has the chance instead of sponging on others?

When the Soviets fall, if the Prince lives to that happy day, his experience in America may have a sufficiently humanizing effect to make him useful to his native land.

DEFINING DEMOCRACY

A sixteen year high school sophomore propounded a much more puzzling question to many people than she imagined when she asked a lady friend: "What is it every one on the radio is talking about—what is this democracy—what does it mean?"

The result of the question was to be found in a radio program by means of which eight distinguished persons were requested to answer the young lady's question and explain to her so that she would understand. Six on the program were Americans, one an Englishman and one a Frenchman.

We fear that most of their definitions left the young lady just as puzzled as before. Stating, as did one of those on the program that "democracy was an affirmation that distinctions of birth or individual strength were spurious" fell far short of opening the way to a practical understanding. Calling democracy, as did another, "an irresistible popular impulse of devotion to human ideals," or the more rhetorical declarations that democracy had as its "watchwords, liberty, equality and brotherhood" still must have left the young lady sadly out on a limb.

But the Englishman who told her that democracy "consists in this; that in every organization those who it affects shall all have a voice in selecting its government" brought her nearer to realizing something of its purpose and gave her an insight as well into its grandeur and its majesty.

A ROYAL PRIVILEGE

Over at a Parisian cocktail party Lady Duff Cooper curtsied to the American Duchess of Windsor, a gymnastic feat to which only royalty is entitled, and by so doing gave English nobility the creeps just in fancying themselves doing the same thing to this divorcee—upstart, as they view her.

We are afraid some leading questions may be necessary in order to clear up the material facts about this affair because a successful cocktail party and a successful curtsy have a difficult time surviving together.

If Lady Duff Cooper can drink, say three cocktails, and then curtsy without flopping to the floor, she is either acrobatic or the cocktails are ram water.

Royalty must have some privileges denied the commoner sort. It is entitled to some offset to balance its hardships, the eternal posing, the endless parties, the never ending photos and interviews. Giving it a curtsy is little enough.

Over here, and elsewhere for that matter, there may be more than broad smiles at the idea of mature persons quarreling over or envying others the right to a certain form or sort of greeting, but if royalty never took more than a deeper bow than others or a backward genuflection the world would have little by way of criticism.

A Verse for Today

OUR TAR-PAPER SHACK

There is no lack
Of love to brighten our tar-paper shack!
The furniture
Is shabby, and the rugs are dull and poor.
The curtain stuff
Is flimsy, and the food is scarce enough,
God knows, but still
Courage is here, and the persistent will
To toil and strive
With dreams and humor, and to keep alive.
The vital spark
Of hope that lights us in the outer dark!
There is no lack
Of love to brighten our tar-paper shack.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—Alone among reporters of Manhattan I am at my happiest when I can broadcast information which tends to show New York isn't as superior as it thinks it is. So I gloat today, for I have just come upon Mr. Jerome H. Cargill, the biggest showman in America.

Broadway does not list Jerome as a showman. It burns its incense before such producers as the Shuberts, George Abbott, Dwight Deere Wiman, the Theatre Guild, the Mercury Theatre, Jod Harris and Brock Pemberton. Yet all these producers together will hardly show in a year as many productions, as many actors or as great a total audience as Jerome Cargill—whose productions never even reach Broadway.

Cargill's stage is the 48 states. His specialty is the professionalized mammoth pageant and the society musical revue. During the 1937-38 season his productions played to more than a million paid customers, and the total box office receipts ran deep into seven figures. (There are shows playing on Broadway today whose weekly box office return is under $4,000 a week, yet the shows are considered hits.)

Cargill produced six pageant-spectacles, each with so many extras and actors as to make a Hollywood super-special picture look as desolate as a haunted house; and more than 100 society musical revues. There wasn't a state in the union which didn't have a Cargill production. Cargill's theatrical offerings did something else that Broadway didn't; they turned more than half of their boxoffice receipts over to charities.

Cargill used to be a vaudeville booking agent. Performers whom he represented and managed included Ann Pennington, Gilda Gray, Kate Smith and the Happiness Boys. When vaudeville died, so did the Cargill business, and a few years later he launched the pageant-revue idea.

He is probably the busiest showman in America, travelling as much as 5,000 miles a week. By necessity he is one of the largest individual users of long distance telephone and telegraph, for there are always several productions under way in different sections of the country, with each of which he keeps in constant touch. He personally supervises all productions.

Among his playwrights are such names as George S. Kaufman, Will Irwin, Jr., Newman Levy, Arthur Pearson and Marjorie Fielding. His casts of actors, singers and dancers include some of the bluest blooded names of America, for the talent is recruited from society's upper brackets. They may not be as good actors as Broadway's, but they are definitely more lachrymose.

His list of directors includes Harland Dixon, William Holbrook, Larry Doyle, Arthur Seelig and a dozen others, all working more busily than anything either Broadway or the Hollywood movie lots can show.

The catch in it, from the Broadway viewpoint, is that the tens of thousands of actors used each year in Cargill shows are not paid. They work for sweet charity. On the other hand, the productions give wide employment to a staff of directors, to office forces and to carpenters and mechanics. And they spread the business of Make-Believe over a far wider area than Broadway, with its narrow perspective, can ever hope to cover.

Every one in a while the stupidity of Broadway showmen who believe the mountain should come to Mahomet is sharply demonstrated. This year it is that great trouper, George M. Cohan, who is revealing the truth that there is a far greater—and certainly more intelligent—audience for the theatre outside New York than in. Touring in "I'd Rather Be Right," Cohan has played everywhere to packed theatres. Katharine Cornell, another famous performer who has never belittled the "Road," also found appreciation there; and the trans-continental tours of Helen Hayes are always theatrical triumphs.

I like to think—and these things bear me out—that provincialism, so called, is not in the provinces, but in New York.

Looking Backward

35 YEARS AGO
Saturday, Dec. 20, 1913

Several of the pulp mills in the valley were threatened with a shortage in pulp wood. The supply was low and little wood was being received.

As a result of Congressman Konop's efforts, the government had sent an engineer and two assistants to secure data along the Wolf river between Shiocton and New London. The data was to be the basis for a recommendation to the rivers and harbors committee for prevention of a recurrence of the floods which a year ago the previous spring caused so much damage to farmers living on land near the river.

At the meeting of the W. H. Chilson camp of the Sons of Veterans the previous night, the following officers were elected: Dr. W. H. Meeker, commander; Frank E. Schallert, senior vice commander; Charles Abbey, junior vice commander; F. V. Heimerman, secretary and treasurer; Edward Schmidt, W. E. Thompson and Horace Greeley, council men; Dr. I. K. Herrick, installing officer. William D. Achermann was elected delegate to the national convention.

10 YEARS AGO
Saturday, Dec. 15, 1928

About 60 schoolmasters of the Fox river valley attended the meeting of the Schoolmasters' club at the Valley Inn at Neshah Friday evening. Appleton education men in attendance were H. H. Hebble, principal of the high school; J. Raymond Walsh and Raymond Hanson, high school faculty members; Prof. J. H. Farley, Dr. Louis Baker, Dr. William Crow and Dr. R. C. Mullenix, Lawrence college faculty members.

Robert Neller and his doll, "Tizzy," had started filling their winter engagements of ventriloquism acts throughout the valley. They performed at Marinette and Milwaukee a short time previous.

Ken Laird, end on the Lawrence college football team, was named on the second Midwestern All-Conference team chosen in a poll of conference coaches. St. Mitchell, Lawrence player, was given honorable mention.

Opinions of Others

EVEN IN CHANGRI-PA

Ramifications of the war in China seem endless. Perhaps it is indirectly significant that they have reached even that remote and romantic land of Tibet, in whose capital, Lhasa, stands the magnificent Potala from which the fantastic story of "Lost Horizon" was woven.

"Dispatches from Chungking tell of a large delegation of Tibetans who arrived there after a long trek. They had come to pledge their allegiance to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, and as symbols of Tibetan unity and co-operation, they presented Chiang with 10,000 sheepskins, worth about $80,000. Even the monks in the distant lamaseries were, they declared, heart and soul behind the Chinese cause.

Ironic, isn't it, that Tibet, tucked deep in its mountain fastnesses, discovered that there was war in China, while the diplomats in the great capitals of China, Japan and the United States never officially have heard of such a thing—Philadelphia Record.

A Bystander In Washington

BY TRESTON GROVER

Washington—Neatest trick of the week is performed by the postoffice department in enforcing its laws against obscene publications and fraudulent advertising.

The department conducts a perpetual warfare against the lewd and lascivious literature which dribbles into the mail. It recently banned from the mail a whole issue of a magazine which contained reminiscences of a west coast harlot.

Nevertheless the trade in obscene literature and pictures is a thriving one and at times boldly advertises its wares in magazines. That puts the postoffice department on guard on another front. Many of these advertisements are written to lead the prospect into believing that if he will send in 25 cents or a dollar he will receive a book of lascivious stories and pictures.

Witnesses Naturally Reluctant

But when the order is delivered it is found to be nothing more than a comic cartoon pamphlet such as can be brought from the corner drug store to amuse the kiddies on a stormy night. The postoffice prosecutes anyway on the grounds that the article advertised was not naughty, as advertised, but clean.

That way the department gets them going and coming. If the stuff is naughty it is illegal, and if it is not naughty it is fraudulently advertised.

However, the department has to dig up much of its own evidence on the fraudulent advertising business. Practically never does a person protest that he ordered an obscene book, expected to get an obscene book, and was not to be satisfied with a pocketful of funnypapers.

Also you might like to know that: December 2 was the 115th anniversary of the proclamation of the Monroe Doctrine. . . . A policeman is on guard at the German embassy at all hours just in case a crank might want to start something that would create an international incident. . . . Usually also there is a cop in the vicinity of the British embassy, but for more or less historic reasons. Back in the twirling twenties Irish men were forever wanting to throw bricks through the British embassy windows. There isn't much trouble from that source any more. . . . You can't find the Russian embassy listed in the telephone books under the "r" division. It comes after the Smiths with a listing as "soviet" embassy. . . . A Washington hostess has embroidered on her cocktail napkins: "You Can't Take It With You."

Your Birthday

"SAGITTARIUS"

If December 18 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:45 a. m. to 1:45 p. m.; from 3:45 to 5:45 p. m.; and from 8:45 to 10:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 9:45 to 11:45 a. m.; from 6:45 to 8:45 p. m.; and from 10:45 p. m. until midnight.

It will not pay to take any unnecessary physical risks this day; automobile drivers should be especially careful. The greatest mistake you can make is to consider yourself capable of construing the law to suit your own purposes, especially if it involves traffic regulations. People will mind their own business even to the point of insisting that their rights and liberties are not interfered with by selfish, self-centered individuals. Quiet, dignified methods will be far more effective than boisterous or belligerent ones. The spirit of good fellowship will be conducive to an unusual degree of good will and neighborliness. You may find the average person very responsive to friendly advances. Married and engaged couples, as well as those whom Cupid has recently brought together, must be careful not to misinterpret each others words, so they should ask for explanations instead of jumping to hasty conclusions. If anything said seems to be uncomplimentary.

If a woman and December 18 is your birthday, matrimony is one of the few partnerships you should enter into, for as a rule you ought to do much better alone. Most likely you have a tremendous amount of nervous energy, which you probably will use advantageously. Much happiness apparently is in store for you. The next twelve months are likely to be exceptionally prosperous for you. Many of your day-dreams will become realities, and your greatest ambition ought to be realized in a highly satisfactory way. As a purchasing agent, professional shopper, teacher, real estate or insurance broker, author or actress you may receive a gratifying amount of recognition.

The child born on December 18, is usually exceptionally good-natured, witty and entertaining. Popularity is apt to be one of its greatest assets.

If a man and December 18 is your natal day, you are perhaps a born actor, and although you may never be a professional one, you may delight in enjoying playing a part with the world as your stage. As a lecturer, clergyman, actor, merchant, broker, financier, accountant, advertising man, architect, writer or engineer your ability may be clearly and profitably demonstrated.

NATURAL BREATHING

This little lesson in physiology is of practical value to people who consider themselves well, and it should interest also people who are subject to valvular heart trouble, or myocardiitis, or angina pectoris, or high blood pressure, or low blood pressure, or morbid introspection about the state of the blood pressure, or cardiovascular degeneration, or arteriosclerosis, or insomnia, or poor circulation, or unaccountable languor, quick fatigability or other manifestations of anoxia which people so readily ascribe to "neurasthenia," whatever that may be.

Some readers don't like my long sentences; others hope I'll get a long one some day. My apology for from 8 to 10 a. m.; from 5 to 7 p. m., and from 9 to 11 p. m.

Procrastination must be combated this day. Only by doing things "with promptness and dispatch" can discordant conditions be averted. The average person's sense of humor is apt to be very noticeable, and likely to be helpful in many ways. The good-natured folks will get the most out of life this day, so take both good and bad news with good grace. It will only be through the lack of other topics that people will resort to scandal as a means of sustaining a conversation, and by malicious gossip prepare for themselves a medium through which adverse criticism may affect their popularity. Loneliness may bring a surge of depressing thoughts, unless you keep your mind absorbed with day-dreaming, reading or work. Because of self-absorption youth will have little or no consideration for Age this day, unless it is made to realize its duties and obligations. Married and engaged couples, and those who have found the one with whom they would like to form a life partnership, must refrain from being "set or hide-bound," in any of their thoughts or actions.

If a woman and December 19 is your birthday, punctuality is one of the most important virtues for you to cultivate. You should devote a great deal of your time to intellectual pursuits. You are probably very sympathetic and do many kindnesses in a very tactful way. Progressive ideas and methods should appeal to you. A love for change may lead you to do much travelling. Sooner or later you become extremely well off in worldly goods. Through music, singing, selling, writing, painting or work of an educational nature you may find yourself quite famous and wealthy. For you wedlock appears to be symbolical of happiness.

The child born on December 19, frequently reflects the characteristics of its playmates, which makes it imperative that they be selected with care. Such children require the personal supervision of their parents. Their fathers and mothers generally have very little trouble in influencing them to do the right thing.

If a man and December 19 is your natal day, with you "honesty" should always be the best policy. Influence and plenty of money appear to be rightfully yours. As a doctor, artist, author, actor, sales agent, manufacturer, inventor, scientist or promoter your opportunities to become successful seem to be unlimited.

Successful People Born On December 19:
Minnie Maddern Fiske, Actress.
Henry C. Frick, Steel and coke manufacturer.
Edwin McM., Stanton, Lawyer and statesman.
John Winthrop, Scientist.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

For gay evenings about town is this roomy but compact vanity. A chic new luxury which carries all your beauty aids.

In step with the more elegant trend of woman's fashions are the new evening bags which are not only novel in modern design but are symbols of regal taste and beauty.

Carryalls are they, through necessity. For our modern belle dare not sally forth on a gala evening without ample means at hand to retouch her perfect grooming as the hours wane.

Last year's small bag with its tiny shirred pocket is no longer adequate for the host of aids smart girls now like to carry. So the new creations ingeniously manage to hold all without sacrificing trim compactness.

One little treasure which boasts of two divisions has been very much favored. The one side has powder in a leak proof container, rouge in a separate shut-tight niche, and a large mirror covers space for a good size lipstick, a change purse, comb and any other little helper you might wish to take with you.

On the other side, completely shut off so no tobacco grains can mess up your make-up cosmetics, is a roomy compartment for cigarettes—holding enough to help but the boy friend when his supply runs low. It closes into a miniature sachel-like affair which women seem to like to carry.

A softer version of bag has a flexible closing and a deeply shir-

Reach Right Bid Despite Faulty Steps

BY ELY CULBERTSON
"Dear Mr. Culbertson: Bridge, like golf, is a humbling game. Just about the time you think you are getting reasonably good, a catastrophe overtakes you. Here's a hand that came up the other day. As the cards lay, there were various avenues of successful play for a small team, but a foursome, which has set you up as the arbiter, would like to know the percentage-wise course, or wherein lies the greater safety, in addition to the proper bidding. Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:
South West North East
2 diamonds Pass 2 spades Pass
3 spades Pass 3 no trump Pass
6 diamonds Pass Pass Pass

"West led the five of diamonds. "One player claims that, after the first trick, the ace and king of spades should be led, followed by the spade jack, on which South should play a small club, which would bring the small slam home, provided East did not hold four spades to the queen and return the fourth spade. In this way no finesse is taken.

"Another claims that, after one round of trumps, a small club should be led to the queen, for even if East holds the king and returns a club, the declarer can play for a spade finesse after going up with the club ace.

"Another claims that the spades and hearts should be virtually ruffed out after the first trick with the hope that the spade queen would fall on the third lead of that suit, thus permitting a club discard on the spade ten.

"And that actual declarer finally admits that, after three rounds of trumps, he led the king of spades and then took the spade finesse, which failed. When his ace of clubs was forced on the next lead he had to surrender a heart trick, even though the heart finesse worked, and he learned the lesson that he should have considered the hand more studiously before drawing trumps. Incidentally, had he tried the heart finesse before the spade finesse, he still could have made it this way.

"Yours in humility,
J. G. New York City.

The bidding was horrible, but, strangely enough, the final contract was an excellent one. South, despite his five-plus honor tricks, did not have an opening two bid, inasmuch as he had six and one-half losing tricks. (In counting a trump suit for a two bid, winners should be counted as though it were a side suit. Thus, in diamonds, South had two and one-half winners in the fifth card.) North's two spade response was all right. South's spade raise was atrocious, with only the K-4 as support. North's three no trump was ghastly. He should have given a strong diamond raise. This, however, was remarkably compensated for by South's assumption that North had very good diamonds, as witnessed by the six diamond bid.

Now for the play. There is something to be said for all suggested lines of play, but analysis reveals that the best plan is to lead a low club toward dummy at the second trick. If the club king goes up (as it actually would in this case) declarer's troubles are virtually over. If the club king lay in East's hand, there still would be several lines of play for the contract, including a possible squeeze. Also, if on a low club lead toward dummy, West ducks, it can be assumed with a fair amount of safety that West does not hold the club king and the club ten can be put in as an attempt to force the king. A heart finesse, of course, is not to be considered, inasmuch as its success would not advance declarer much further toward his goal.

Believe that schools should teach personal care for the creation of personal beauty.

Girls in their teens should be taught how to use cosmetics, and when and where, just as they ought to be taught health habits as the basis for beauty, fitting clothes for the occasion as the basis of good taste in dress, gracious behavior as the source of social success. Girls must have beauty of form, beauty of appearance, beauty of character in order to be at their best. It is their duty to acquire these gifts as characteristics, and it is our duty to help them.

It is easy to smile at the overdressed, overpainted, overmannered girl, staggering along the sidewalk on spike-heeled slippers that were intended for the dancing floor. But it is not easy for the girl to understand why her efforts, her painful sacrifices at the altar of beauty do not meet with the appreciation that is their due. Somebody is to blame for every such mistaken girl. Somebody should have taught her the right way.

I know that many people frown on the artificial aids to beauty that young girls use, and many of the frowns are justified. But the mistakes are made through ignorance. Teach the girls that health, attention to diet, care in selecting and wearing clothes suitable to the occasion, gracious manners, can be ac-

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

"CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST"
One of the clearest instances of liquor propaganda occurs when college presidents endorse alcohol under the guise of liberalism and temperance. Sometimes the family fortunes of such supposedly intellectual are tied up in brewery stock! So their endorsements belong in the category of the 30 pieces of silver 1900 years ago.

CASE L-198: Enid J., aged 19, is one of my college students. "So many of the girls are drinking nowadays," she said, "that I wish you'd tell me about the medical and psychological effects of alcohol. "I've never used liquor in any form, but young women today act as if you aren't up-to-date if you of alcohol, one of its most serious influences is its depressing effect on the nervous system. It slows down our reflexes and speed of movement on the average about 10 per cent. This is a very significant and dangerous effect in this age of high speed automobiles and factory machinery.

This depressing effect also operates to our brain and cerebral cortex, which controls our thinking. An intelligent man can be rendered temporarily feeble-minded by a few drinks of liquor.

You can notice this effect while it is taking place. First, the drinker grows more talkative. Children enjoy dominating the conversation and showing off.

Then the adult drinker begins to laugh at almost everything that is said. His sense of humor, too, is becoming child-like. Sober adult sees nothing humorous in the remark which he considers uproariously funny after alcohol has anesthetized 5 or 10 years of his mental age.

Alcohol Produces Temporary Feeble-mindedness
Ultimately the most brilliant man or woman will lie down on the rich oriental rug of his host or hostess, puke all over it, lose control of the sphincter muscles of bladder and rectum, and snore in total disdain of his surroundings.

Thus, he drops from a brilliant adult to complete zero or idiocy in his intelligence. Anything, therefore, which robs man of his intelligence, is dangerous and contrary to all moral principles.

For centuries we have been educating our people from savagery to a civilized outlook where men treat women and children with respect; where they live intelligent lives. Where they abide by moral precepts and are peaceful citizens.

Alcohol reverses the entire direction of all the constructive forces in civilization. There isn't a valid psychological reason to defend it.

Young people who indulge in drinking are like teen-agers who adopt profanity and cigarettes; namely, inferiority complexes who are trying to look big. Don't stoop to such juvenility. Act your age. Use your brain; don't pickle it!

Men Often Inconsistent in What They Expect of Women

BY DOROTHY DIX
Dear Miss Dix—Men are what women marry. Men are divided into three classes: Husbands, bachelors and widowers. A bachelor is a man whose mind is filled with obstinacy and whose soul is filled with suspicion. Husbands are of three varieties: Prizes, surprises and consolation prizes. Making a husband out of a man is one of the highest arts known to civilization. It requires science, patience, persistence, faith, hope and charity. If a woman flatters a man, she frightens him to death. If she doesn't, she bores him to extinction. If she permits him to make love to her, he gets tired of her in the end. And if she doesn't, he gets tired of her in the beginning. If she believes all he tells her, he thinks she is foolish. And if she doesn't, he thinks she is a cynic. If she wears gay colors, rouge, lipstick and a startling hat, he hesitates to take her out. If she wears a little brown turban and a tailor-made suit, he takes her out and stares all evening at a woman in a gay dress who is painted up like a barn door and wears a hat that hits you in the eye. If a girl is a good fellow and drinks and smokes with a man, he says she is leading him into destruction. If she doesn't, he calls her a flat tire. If a girl is a clinging vine, he considers her a nitwit. And if she is modern and hard-boiled and able to hold down a good job, he accuses her of having no heart. If she is silly, he longs for an intellectual companion. And if she is brilliant, he craves a playmate. Most men are like worms in the grass—they wriggle around a while, then some chicken grabs them. So what? G. W. A.

Answer:
This clever analysis of his sex is made by a man and it should explain several things that have kept women guessing through the ages and have given them a perpetual headache.

First, it explains why women find it so hard to catch husbands. It is because men are not satisfied with just one wife. They want twenty different kinds of wives, but they don't want to have to support a harem. They want all these different types of ladies consolidated in one single human female. They want a wife who can double in string and wind and play the drum with their feet. Few women are that versatile.

For, alas, it is only too sadly true that it is not enough for any woman to carry any line of standard charms and virtues with which to appeal to the fickle masculine fancy. Because, no matter what role she essays, she is damned if she does and damned if she doesn't. And so what is a poor girl to do? No wonder so many young women quit wearing themselves out trying to guess the insoluble riddle of what men really like in women and espouse careers instead of men.

For another thing this frank estimate of his fellow men by a man explains why so many women fail to give satisfaction as wives. They can't, because their husbands married them quired by patient practice. Then help them to that end. In spite of all the exaggeration and mistaken gestures, our girls today are cleaner and prettier than ever. They need encouragement and training to avoid false standards. We should attend to that ourselves.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a 3-cent stamp. Addressed envelope for reply.

she should have fine clothes while others wear their old ones; that she should be idle while others work.

No man can enslave himself to his wife as a mother does to her daughter. No man wants a wife who is not willing to do her share of the adjusting of a couple to each other in marriage. Or who will not do her part in the work of building up a home. But when he marries one of these spoiled brats she considers herself ill-used and goes back to Mother whenever he expects her to act like an adult human being.

Dear Dorothy Dix—During my first two years at college I made a brilliant record as a student, but now I have fallen so much in love with a girl that I can't put my mind on my work and my grades have sunk to nothing. I am now studying law, but my mind is so distraught by my love that I don't expect to last out my freshman year. What shall I do? WORRIED.

Answer:
"My only books were women's looks and folly is all they have taught me," says the old poem. That seems to be about your fix, and my serious advice is to go to some alienist and have your head examined. Surely you must be crazy to let a case of calf love wreck your whole life.

FOREIGN TITLE
Dear Mrs. Post: My daughter is to be married to a foreigner whose native language is French, and so we would like to know whether in courtesy we should have Monsieur engraved instead of Mr. before his name on the wedding invitations and announcements. What is usually done when an American girl marries a foreigner?

Answer: Whenever there are exact English equivalents, titles are translated into English. Monsieur, Herr or Signor all become Mr.

THE ARMY POST MURDERS

By Virginia Hanson

THE CHARACTERS
KATHERINE CORNISH, myself, visiting Elizabeth on a mid-western Army post.
ELIZABETH, Colonel Wright's daughter.
ADAM DREW, acting commanding officer.

YESTERDAY: Adam has no luck in tracing the person behind the murder. The killer was evidently eager to keep the skeleton in the family closet.

Chapter 23
Conflicting Stories
It was not necessary to speculate who was on the telephone. The voice carried easily across the room, and I gathered that the speaker was annoyed.

He had been trying to get hold of someone—anyone—for two hours—were they all murdered there at Fort Havens? And when he asked for the Service Club that blankety-blank operator had the blankety-blank nerve to tell him he was keeping the line open for an important call from Omaha. It had cost him at least a dollar to convince the fool that he was the important call from Omaha and that a certain dundering ox could prepare to go back to his troop beginning tomorrow. And tell him—was Elizabeth there, and was she all right?

It was her father. I listened to Adam reassure him, answer questions, supply the reluctant information that there had been a new murder.

I heard the howl of rage, of incredulity, of blasphemy with which this was greeted. Presently Adam laid down the instrument gently, strode to the door with a rather weak grin for me and summoned Elizabeth.

The voice on the wire was quieter now. She said, "Yes Father. No, Father, in soothing duffal accents. Then, 'All right, dear, don't worry. Major Drew is doing splendidly and I'm not in the slightest danger. Kay and Annie and I are all together. . . . Yes, dear, we'll be looking for you.'"

She replaced the telephone, explained inadequately, "He's flying back as soon as it's light and bringing a Federal Bureau man with him. He—I think he has an idea there's a homicidal maniac at large. He wants us to go home and bolt all the doors; and he's given orders for a guard around the house." She smiled faintly.

"Not a bad idea," said Adam, "I sensed that his pride was touched. 'Before you go, however, I'd like to ask you a few questions—and Annie, too, if you don't mind.'"

She did not mind, naturally—anything at all she could do to help. But she was afraid she knew nothing at home when Anne was shot.

Adam seized on that. Had she seen anyone while she was at home? Adam seized on that. Had she seen anyone while she was at home?

"No, no air of calm surprise as if to ask, should she have?

"I sat in the library for a while, waiting for the call—which did not come, by the way." She had gone upstairs for a minute, then down the back stairs to the kitchen, where she had a drink of water and a sandwich.

"Annie had left some—I'm afraid dancing always makes me hungry." "Then?" Adam asked casually.

"No, I thought the call might still come through."

For no apparent reason she blushed deeply, then grew rather pale. She turned to me with a forced smile. "Then I heard Katherine drive up and came out presently to see who it was. She—she told me about Anne."

"Then you drove right to the hospital?"

"Yes, I had to wait. Finally Barney joined me, then Annie." She sounded like a dutiful child reciting a rather dull lesson. "I don't know how long we sat there—it seemed like hours. . . ."

Phile in Her Eyes
"Then, when you came back to the club, you went at once to the kitchen?"

"Well, practically at once. Every-one seemed so peaked and drawn and sort of lost; and Barney came out of the library looking as if he would fly apart. I thought perhaps

Junch together practically every day during the business week. We always eat in the same restaurant, but are not served every day by the same waitress. Of course every one knows us very well by now. We would like very much to leave a tip just once a week instead of having to bother about the right change every noon. We believe the waitresses have a general fund; that is, they put their tips together and divide them. What would you suggest as the amount for each of us to give for the week, and how could we go about making such an arrangement?

Answer: You will of course, first of all, have to find out whether they do have a general fund or whether each waitress keeps her own tips. If there is a general fund so that the tips are evenly divided, you could, I suppose, arrange to give the amount to one of the waitresses or to the cashier. I personally think it sounds less complicated to do as you are now doing. This, however, is something for you alone to decide. The least amount you could possibly give would be ten percent of your total bill for the week, and this would probably be considerably less than the amount you now give unless you order rather extravagant meals.

New Year Greetings
Dear Mrs. Post: My husband and I have some of the folded cards like big visiting cards, with Mr. and Mrs. John W. Black printed on the front side. Some one gave me a large box of them for a present and I have used very few out of the box. What would you think of writing a New Year's message to friends on these cards?

Answer: It would be quite all right. Picture cards would be prettier, but on the other hand, handwritten messages could be made to seem more personal.

My Neighbor Says—
Heavenly blue morning glories may be grown successfully indoors. Plant in two parts rich loam and one part leaf mold. Water soil several times before planting seed and plant only four seeds in a five-inch pot. These should be planted half an inch deep.

Small pieces of toilet soap that accumulate in the bathroom should not be thrown away. Add water enough to cover them and put on stove until dissolved. This makes an excellent soft soap.

Girls Must Look Their Best If They are to be Cheerful

BY ANGELO PATRI

Girls have to look their best if they are to be happy. If nature has not been generous with her ration of beauty a girl has to do what she can to help herself, which means that most girls have to give thought and real effort to look their best and keep looking that way. It cannot be done without care and effort which often becomes a sacrificial rite.

When a girl is pudgy—and young girls, those in their early teens whose childhood is still apparent upon them, are very likely to be—she wishes mightily to be slender and graceful as a lily swinging in the breeze. On every hand she hears how weight can be reduced, and this enviable slenderness acquired by using this and that prescription or diet. The temptation is hard to resist. A pill, a starvation diet for a brief time, and the trick is done.

It is too bad to deceive young people that way. The older ones know better and have themselves to thank for the trouble that overcomes them. The youngsters do not know and do not understand and are victims of false advice. They have to be taught that the right diet—that is, right for them—and the right exercises are the only safe and sure ways to the right weight for their height, and their age.

It is a little too much for a fifteen-year-old girl, still with the traces of her plump childhood, to want to put on the formal gown and figure of the professional stage beauty. That dream can wait. But it is right and greatly to be admired, that this girl should want to look her best. She ought to be helped to do so by her mother, the family physician and her teachers. I believe that schools should teach personal care for the creation of personal beauty.

Girls in their teens should be taught how to use cosmetics, and when and where, just as they ought to be taught health habits as the basis for beauty, fitting clothes for the occasion as the basis of good taste in dress, gracious behavior as the source of social success. Girls must have beauty of form, beauty of appearance, beauty of character in order to be at their best. It is their duty to acquire these gifts as characteristics, and it is our duty to help them.

Chamber Aims at Co-Operation of City and College

Council of Representatives to Discuss Common Problems

A step in a program for closed co-operation among the city administration, Lawrence college, and Appleton business men was taken yesterday when the Appleton Chamber of Commerce board of directors approved the suggestion that a council composed of representatives from these bodies be established.

The recommendations for this council came from the three men who directed Appleton's part in the Lawrence college homecoming last fall, the first time the city has actively cooperated in a college event of this kind. The men are William J. Roemer, William E. Schubert, and John R. Riedl.

The chamber directors adopted the suggestion that the council have 12 members, three of them from the college, three city officials, three representing the public schools, and three from the chamber.

Flexible Organization
The council will deal with common problems and work towards advancement of all concerned. The recommendations adopted by the chamber of commerce yesterday stated that "since the proposal is of such character that the experience of others is not available, the organization should be made sufficiently flexible at the outset so that if changes are deemed necessary it can be arrived at without undue interference with the program at large."

It was suggested that the mayor, one alderman, and another city official, the police chief or a member of the fire and police commission, represent the city. President Thomas N. Barrows of Lawrence college, a college trustee, and Ralph J. Watts, college business manager, were suggested as college representatives. A member of the board of education, the superintendent of schools, and the principal of the high school would probably compose the public school delegation.

From the chamber of commerce would come a professional man, a business man, and a representative of the newspaper.

The council will meet regularly for discussions of matters affecting both city and college and will encourage active participation of the city in college events.

him $4 a week, but during the school year he has been able to earn very little. He is in desperate need of warm clothing, and all the children are suffering from malnutrition. The family is getting along a little better now that the father is earning $70 a month, but he is facing an impossible task of raising seven children on that income.

It must be evident to everyone that there will be no money for Christmas in that home. The only hope for toys and extra clothing and a Christmas dinner rests with the Good Fellows. There are many families in so much worse circumstances that quite a bit of money will have to be received before this one can be helped.

Appleton people generally have responded generously to the cry of the helpless and it is hoped that this year will be no exception. It would be a calamity if Appleton people have the idea that because they themselves are not in want they everyone here is in the same fortunate circumstance. A visit to the relief and welfare offices any day would soon rid them of that impression.

Chicago Subway Is Started With Flourish, Fanfare

Nicks Put in State Street Pavement Mark Beginning of Project

Chicago—(U)—Chicago's $40,000,000 subway system, a civic dream for 30 years, became a reality today on a small square of pavement in State street.

There, with silver-plated spades and a pneumatic shovel, more than 200 dignitaries gathered for the ceremonies which will signalize the beginning of work on the vast project.

Secretary of the Interior Harold I. Ickes, who, as public works administrator, approved an $18,000,000 grant for the work, and Mayor Edward J. Kelly, long a champion of the subway, were the principal speakers.

The black horse cavalry troop and a drum and bugle corps were in the line of march of a parade scheduled to lead proud citizens to the scene of the ceremonies near Chicago avenue, north of the loop.

Only a few symbolic nicks were to be put in the pavement today. Actual work will be started later.

The fanfare had its political as well as civic implications. Mayor Kelly was expected to announce next week that he will become a candidate for re-nomination in the Democratic primary next spring. Until Thursday, when he announced he would not run, Secretary Ickes was being boomed as a rival candidate.

The project contemplates two rapid-transit tunnels 40 feet under the downtown district. One tube will begin at 14th street on the near south side and run north under State street, the principal shopping thoroughfare, to Division street on the near north side, turn west to Clybourn avenue and extend northwest under Clybourn avenue to North avenue.

The other region will begin at Congress street on the south edge of the loop, run north under Dearborn street to Lake street on the north boundary of the loop and proceed northwest under Milwaukee avenue to Ashland avenue.

Engineers have estimated the system would be completed by Jan. 30, 1940.

It Is Said--

That Coach Joseph Shields and W. C. Pickett, physical education instructors at Appleton High school, may fool some of the people all of the time, etc., but the picture showing Coach Shields standing with his hands in the air with Pickett doing a handstand on top isn't fooling anybody, or is it? For a joke, the pair had Christmas cards made showing the picture and are sending them to all their friends. The picture actually was taken with Pickett hanging by his knees from gymnasium rings.

Council Awards Pool Contract to Oshkosh Company

Work on Neenah Recreation Project Will Begin Next Week

Neenah — The city council last night at a special meeting awarded the contract for the construction of the swimming pool and recreation building to the lowest bidder, the Flour Bros. Construction company. Oshkosh, which submitted a bid of $114,039.

Colonel John J. Stewart, Chicago, regional director of PWA, who appeared before the council, told the aldermen that they had to accept the bid at that time or lose the PWA grant. He stated that PWA definitely wouldn't grant another extension of time.

Mayor Edwin A. Kalfas pointed out that while the base bid of $114,000 was much below the estimated cost, the project when finished would cost nearly $140,000. He explained that in the revised plans it was necessary to cut out much of the recreation hall facilities but the pool and bathhouses remained the same.

The mayor also explained that the recreation building will be so constructed as to provide for expansion. He said that the construction company has indicated it will work with the city on this program.

Two groups of these organizations are shown in the top pictures, the four at the upper left being, front row, left to right, Miss Marjorie Patterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Patterson, 1100 E. North street; and Miss Betty Burger, Evansville, Ind.; rear row, Miss Doris Draeb, Sturgeon Bay; John Bayer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bayer, 331 W. Oklahoma street. waldt, Waconia, Minn. "O Little Town of Bethlehem" was in rehearsal by the group at the lower left when the photographer visited them one day this week. Selected from various organizations and Sunday school departments of First Congregational church, the carolers will sing at the homes of shut-ins of the parish next Friday night. Bailey's Basket Gives Highs Win

Fraser High Scorer for Appleton: Gets 10 Points

BY GORDON MCINTYRE
A WEEK ago it was recorded in this column that Appleton High school dropped a basketball decision to Green Bay West which it should have won; and today we record that last night Appleton won a decision from Sheboygan North which it should have lost. The score was 22 to 21.

For whereas the Terrors looked like a smart, alert ball team a week ago, last evening they looked just the reverse. They couldn't handle the ball, they were always a second too late in their passes and in their efforts to intercept enemy passes or outguess the invaders. And the reason for their failure to get baskets can only be that the hoop had a cover on it; there's no other way for accounting for some of the antics of the ball.

The Terrors won the game with 15 seconds to go and almost lost it with ten to go. After trailing 20 to 14 at one stage in the last half, the highs came back and trailed 21 to 20 with 55 seconds to go. After the teams battled for possession of the ball, an out of bounds play was called in the Appleton half, passed to Bailey who was all alone, and Bob turned and canned a shot as the new gymnasium got a taste of some good, old-fashioned screaming and yelling.

There were just 15 seconds of play left when the ball went through the hoop. It came in from out of bounds again and with Sheboygan attempting to move down the floor, Wes Morris played Spiller too close and foul was called, which gave Appleton a chance to tie the count. But Spiller, a guard, wasn't the boy to cage one in the clutch and soon the contest was over.

North stepped away to a 5 to 0 lead in the opening quarter with Appleton generally being left in the lurch, beaten to the punch or whatever you wish to call it. With the period almost over, Fraser followed up a shot for Appleton's first basket. The quarter ended 7 to 3 for North.

As the second quarter ticked into eternity, Appleton's lineup showed practically a reserve team trying to even the score. DeLeest and Swamp were at the guards, and Werner at one forward. They didn't do so badly and held Sheboygan to a single long and had a lead of 10 to 9 when the teams rested. Werner had gotten a followup shot, Fraser a followup and a couple free throws and Swamp a free throw.

The Appleton first stringers were back as the third quarter got underway. But when Silbernagel followed up a shot and then pushed in another with Besch batting the ball into his hands, the invaders earned a 16 to 12 lead which was cut to 16-14 at the end of the quarter when Bailey got a long basket.

The opening minutes of the fourth quarter saw North literally rush Appleton out of the gym and take a 20 to 14 lead. But Morris' long shot cut the margin and when Werner got a followup shot, the score stood 21 to 18 against the Terrors with three minutes to go. Shortly thereafter Fraser intercepted a Sheboygan pass and broke fast down the floor to score and put Appleton within a point of a tie. With 55 seconds to go, Buesing was fouled by Pait but he obliged by fouling. Then followed some 40 seconds of wild mulling with the crowd yelling to the stars.

Suddenly the ball went to Appleton on an out of bounds and Buesing passed quickly to Bob Bailey who pivoted and shot unmolested. As the ball went through the hoop the gym became a madhouse. Morris' foul followed and Spiller muffed and soon the final horn sounded.

Silbernagel was high point man for North with six field goals of varying size and a free throw for 13 points. Fraser had four baskets and two free throws for ten points; Bailey had three baskets and two free throws for ten points; Werner had one basket and one free throw for three points; and Swamp had one basket and one free throw for three points.

The Terrors reserves in the fourth cage victory.

With Powers getting nine points, Lathrop four and seven other boys getting at least a basket each, Appleton High school reserve cagers defeated Sheboygan North reserves, 30 to 12, here last night. Appleton led 13 to 3 at the half, and 22 to 10 at the third quarter. It was the fourth straight win for the Terrors.

MENASHA — The St. Mary High school basketball team bounced back into the Fox Valley Catholic conference race Friday night by defeating St. Mary's at Oshkosh 27 to 15. The Zephyrs opened up in the final half to score their victory although the Greyhounds never had any better than a tie score.

Bill Resch paced the Zephyr attack with five field goals and two free throws for 12 points. Reuben Prunuske added three field goals. The Zephyr defense held the Oshkosh team to four field goals and seven free throws. The Zephyrs decisively trounced the team that lost to St. John's of Little Chute in an overtime game.

The entire first quarter was a cautious defensive battle. Little more than a minute before the end of the quarter, Bill Coenen put the Zephyrs into the lead with a goal. Both teams counted six points in the second quarter with the Zephyrs holding an 8 to 6 advantage at the half. Coenen and Laux counted free throws while Prunuske and Resch scored a field goal each. For Oshkosh LeBele scored two field goals while Nigl and Dux counted on free throws.

With Bill Resch hitting on the shots in the third quarter and receiving assistance from Prunuske, the Zephyrs soon ran up a commanding lead. Welter scored a free throw to make the score 8 to 7. Then Resch counted two free throws, Prunuske got a basket and Resch added two more to make the score 16 to 7. The Oshkosh team added four points before Resch counted again and Johnson scored a field goal to make the third quarter score 20 to 11.

Move Away
The Zephyrs continued to pile onto their lead in the last period. Prunuske opened with a field goal but the Greyhounds picked up three points on free throws. Resch added another basket while Laux got a basket and a free throw to run the St. Mary score to 27. A free throw by Dux completed the scoring. The Greyhounds were held without a field goal in the last quarter.

The St. Mary C.Y.O. team of Menasha defeated an alumni team of St. Mary's of Oshkosh 35 to 18 in a preliminary game. After trailing at the half, the St. Mary Menasha team started to hit the basket to run away with the game. Players were H. Hoks, B. Hoks, Bob Resch, T. Resch, C. Resch, John Schwarzbauer and Carl Beck.

Larry Buhler Hurt in St. Paul Auto Crash

St. Paul —(AP)—Lawrence (Larry) Buhler, University of Minnesota football back recently drafted by the Green Bay Packers, suffered severe injuries last night when an automobile he was driving skidded and crashed into a street car pole.

The 21-year-old football star was pinned in the wreckage so tightly it was necessary to use a crowbar to bend the steering wheel and instrument board to extricate him.

At St. Luke's hospital, Dr. M. O. Thorsen gave him a "good chance to live unless complications set in." The injuries were described as multiple lacerations of the head, chest, a broken nose and possible internal injuries.

Pick Lou Nova as Coming Champion as He Gives Farr Terrific Beating in 15 Frames

BY GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK —(AP)—Write the name of Lou Nova big in your book, for the young man from Alameda, Calif., who pounded Tommy Farr into helplessness in 15 rounds here last night is certain as s'n to be the next world's heavyweight fighting champion.

It might be a year, and it more than likely will be two years before the California kid is ready to knock the wreath off Joe Louis' placid brow. But the 10,000 who saw him wreck the durable Welshman last night will be he does it sooner or later.

Nova, tempered in only 25 previous professional fights, gave the veteran Farr a worse shelling than Farr received from Louis, or from Max Baer or from Jim Braddock, and he had the Welshman on the verge of a knockout at the finish.

For the last two minutes of the fourteenth round Farr absorbed perhaps the most cruel beating of his long career. A terrific left hook first sent him tottering and brought his guard to his knees, and Nova must have poured a hundred furious blows in his chin and body before the bell finally ended the round.

Tonypandy Tommy stood up. Furthermore, he came out for the final round and lasted through that one, too, though the ringers wondered what held him up as Nova lashed him with everything. Nova, who was fighting his first 15-rounder, was too tired to put across a finisher.

"I hoped the referee would stop it in the 14th," said the victor as he lay, dead-tired, in his dressing room afterward. "I was afraid I would hurt him seriously. My, I didn't know any man living could take punches like that."

May Meet Baer Next
Fluttering around Nova like a nervous hen was Promoter Mike Jacobs, who has in the youngster one-half of a million-dollar future in the not very distant future. Mike solicitously examined the two cuts under Lou's eyes and said that the kid's next opponent probably would be Max Baer.

As for Nova and his manager, Ray Carlin, they are ready for Baer any time. They are willing to fight Louis within a year.

"I'll confess I was a little tired for the last five rounds," Nova said, "but now that I've gone 15 rounds and whipped a man like Farr I feel like I'm over the big hump."

Joe Louis was one of the most interested spectators. The Negro champion watched raptly as Nova piled up a lead on Farr with a jabbing left and short right, and was on the edge of his seat like everybody else during the last two stanzas while Farr went from rope to rope on rubbery legs and wouldn't go down.

Tackled for his opinion on the latest "white hope," Joe said: "He looks mighty good, mighty good." Nova looked all of that. Considering the extent of his experience and the fact that he was fighting one of the toughest trial horses in the game, he looked just about perfect.

The one thing Nova obviously lacks is a single killing punch, though he repeatedly stunned and staggered Farr, both with his left hook and his straight right.

Vikings Improved But Lose Verdict To DePauw Cagers

Failure to Count Free Throws Hurts Most in 27-23 Defeat

BY GORDON MCINTYRE
LAWRENCE college basketball team, which didn't get much credit a week ago in defeating Mission House college, earned a lot of praise yesterday afternoon here while dropping a 27 to 23 decision to DePauw University, Greencastle, Ind. If the Vikings had been a bit more consistent in making free throws they might have won. They outscored the invaders from the field by a single basket.

Pretty much of the same height and with speed to burn the two teams played great defensive ball and occasionally turned loose sensational spurts on offense as they raced down the court.

Guards Leading Scorers
Lawrence's veteran guards paced the Vikings in the scoring with Ken Buesing showing four goals and a free throw before being ousted on personal fouls. Norm Faleide counted two baskets while Harry Jackson upheld the forwards with two baskets and two free throws. The other Vike goal went to Cape.

De Pauw's shooting aces were Lindsay, a guard who got three goals and four free throws for ten points, and Kixmiller, forward, who counted three goals and two gift shots. The latter was a southpaw and a most deceptive shot for anyone used to watching right handers.

The game was the last for Lawrence until after the holidays. The squad disbanded last night and will return just before New Years. For DePauw, it was the first game on a Wisconsin trip. Tonight the Tigers will be at Carroll and Monday at Beloit.

DePauw got off to a 7 to 3 start, largely on free throws which it managed to make with ease and which Lawrence managed to miss with ease. Faleide's long shot cut the margin, however, and when Buesing drove in fast and tallied, the lead was only 8 to 7.

Buesing tossed another basket to give Lawrence a lead but Bennetts hurt things when he missed two free throws. Three free throws and baskets by Frank, big center, and Lindsay, guard, put DePauw in front, 17 to 13, at the half. Jackson got the final Lawrence basket, a long shot.

DePauw opened the final half fast and ran up a 21 to 14 lead before Lawrence revived under the goading of a fair crowd. Jackson tossed a one-handed shot and then Schade missed two free throws. Moore got a long basket for the invaders but Buesing's basket put Lawrence back in the running. With five minutes left to play, Buesing scored again, Cape putting on a helpful block.

Faleide rattled a long shot through the hoop and Lawrence hopes went miles high as the clock showed a trifle over two minutes to go and the score 25-23. But Buesing gathered his fourth personal and Smith added a point to DePauw's total. When Jackson fouled and another point was added there were just four seconds remaining.

SHAWANO — Shawano High school's championship streak took a pronounced upturn here last night as the Indians defeated Neenah, 31-25, in a "bang-up" game before a record crowd of jubilant Shawano fans. Although a long, tough schedule remains, the Indians now hold the inside edge by defeating the previously unbeaten Red Rockets.

Neither team showed the polish that a coach might wish for, and both, especially Neenah, displayed inaccuracy at the hoop but the contest was played by two teams well versed in the fast break and in fighting for rebounds. The latter tendency led to numerous wild scrambles under both hoops and occasional ragged passing helped to inject a wild note into the affair.

Again it was Billy Reed, Shawano sophomore, who stood out. Reed was wild during the first half, but he came through with a total of seven buckets for fourteen points—raising his total to 39 in three conference games. Other bright spots of the game, were Vern Rosen's alert defensive game, which made his varsity spot a certainty, and the pep displayed by Franklin Schwaers and Merle Cooper in the rebound department.

Schmidt Paces Neenah
Dan Schmidt, with five field goals, led the Neenah attack and the crowd liked the flashy ball-handling of Warren Kettering. No substitutes were used by either team until the fourth quarter, when B. Kettering went in for Hackett and became the game's lone replacement.

The Dilts-coached warriors held a 1-point advantage at the quarter mark, 16-15. The third quarter saw Shawano take a commanding lead as Reed counted on a dribble-in and again on a long underhand shot. Schwaers coined a short shot and Gottschalk added the seventh point while Schmidt and Hesselman got a bucket each to make the three-quarter total 23-19.

Reed counted another dribble shot and Schmidt made a one-hand push shot to open the fourth quarter. The Maroon and Black passed the ball back and forth until they drew the Rockets out and then worked in over their heads for two buckets, one by Schwaers and one by Gottschalk. Much as the Neenah section of the crowd expressed its disapproval—in no uncertain terms—the score was 29 to 21 when Neenah took time out with two minutes to play.

Play Is Rough
The last couple of minutes were marred by unusually rough play and the fouls came thick and fast. Kettering counted three times at the free throw hoop on fouls by Gottschalk and Rosenow while Hesselman added the final Neenah point with a gift shot at Schwaers' expense. Reed came through with a final bucket to partially nullify the Neenah free throws. Cooper and Kettering each missed a free throw on a double foul just before the game ended.

The Neenah Reserves defeated the Shawano Bees, 21-14 in the preliminary.

Riggs Figures U. S. Should Retain Davis Tennis Trophy

CHICAGO —(AP)—Bobby Riggs, America's top-ranking amateur tennis player since Don Budge turned pro, has but one burning ambition these days: Keep the Davis cup in the United States. And he thinks it can be done if the first flight candidates for the cup team "get into perfect condition and make every effort to reach their peak for the international matches."

"I think," Riggs said, "that we have an even chance to retain the cup even if Budge is gone, but I wouldn't say our chance is better than 50-50."

"We should be able to round up a good team from the candidates. I rate Sid Wood, Elwood Cooke, Frank Kovacs, Gene Mako, Betsy

Kimberly Cagers Defeat Waukesha

In Close Battle

Bowman Buckets 18 Points on 8 Field Goals And 2 Gift Shots

Kimberly—In a battle that had the fans on edge throughout, the Kimberly A. A. champs defeated Waukesha All Stars by a score of 47 to 41 at the clubhouse Friday evening. It was late in the third period that the Papermakers had an edge and little by little increased it over the tiring visitors. The score was 24-41 at the half with the lead changing several times but not more than by a few points. The win gives the A's two wins in as many starts over the All-Stars.

Reliable Joe Gossens dribbled free for a nice shot from side court and LeMay passed to Bowman under the basket as the champs rang up four points within 40 seconds. LeMay fouled C. Robel and his gift shot found the hoop. C. Robel, taking a pass from Pitsch, hooped another two points for the invaders. Bowman rolled one in from under the hoop only to have Schiffman count on a long shot.

Bowman added two more points for the Papermakers. L. Pitsch took a neat pass from his mate, Keuper, to score but Joe Gossens retaliated with a nice shot. Keuper's shot rolled around the hoop and dropped in, the quarter ending with Waukesha leading 14 to 11.

Kimberly Takes Lead
Nor Gossens put the champs in the game again in the second stanza with a nice shot from under the basket. Bowman then dribbled the length of the court and dropped one in. Joe Gossens took the ball away from C. Robel and dribbled to the basket for another two points. L. Pitsch made good on his free try when fouled by LeMay and added another bucket a moment later.

C. Vander Velden added two on a rebound. L. Pitsch and A. Robel each found the hoop to count. Things were looking bad for the home boys when Hofkins fouled Klatt, but Joe Gossens squared back with a point when he was fouled by Klatt. Bowman brought the crowd to its feet by passing neatly to Hofkins under the basket to connect. Schiffman gave his team the lead by adding two gift shots when fouled; but A. Vander Velden made the score 24-41 as the half ended.

N. Gossens and C. Vander Velden were getting under rebounds to add four points for their mates in the third quarter. A. Robel added a point when fouled and C. Robel followed up with a nice shot from the side court. Bowman made two successive buckets on rebounds while LeMay plunked one. The invaders were tiring quickly and could not follow up their shots. Klatt fouled LeMay and Buck made good on his try. On the tipoff Keuper took the ball and put a neat shot looping through the hoop. With both teams fighting furiously, the period ended with the Papermakers in the lead 40 to 34.

Try Long Shots
Bowman added a bucket to open the last period while Hofkins connected on a pass from C. Vander Velden. Mahnkke relieved Keuper and added two points for the visitors. C. Robel and A. Robel fouled the hoop but Bowman took the next rebound to score. With the A. champs in the lead and playing carefully, the visitors tried many long shots to pull the game out of the fire. The champions were alert on rebounds and the game ended, giving the Papermakers a win over one of the fastest teams in the state.

The Kimberly squad opened the preliminaries with a victory over the C.Y.O. squad of St. Patrick's, Menasha, 25 to 21. Kobs was high point scorer for the Papermakers with seven points while Goodhardt of St. Pat's connected for ten. Both teams played a hard brand of ball with the lead changing many times during the game. Dupont put the game on ice by two long buckets from the mid-floor.

Stacymen Sink Free Throws to Beat Phantoms in Overtime

SCORE IS 25 TO 21

Hoier and Micklejohn Are Offensive Stars For Winners

Stacymen—Free throws played a major role in the New London victory over West De Pere by a 25 to 21 margin in a Northeastern Wisconsin conference overtime tilt here last night.

The New London squad converted on 13 of 17 chances from the free throw mark and the tying and winning points were registered via the gift shot route.

Pat Golden of West De Pere put his team into a 21 to 19 lead on two free throws during the closing minutes of play and Gordon Micklejohn, New London guard, netted two free throws to knot the score at 21 to 21 with seconds to go. Micklejohn bagged three free throws and Wallace Hammerberg added another in the overtime period.

New London started fast with a 6 to 2 edge at the end of the first quarter and a 15 to 10 lead at half-time. New London slumped in the third frame and bucketed but one point while the Black Phantoms collected five.

Hoier sparked the winners with five buckets and one free throw for eleven points and shared scoring honors with L. Van Sistine who duplicated for his team.

Tony Gets Tough and Flattens Daniels in Exhibition Contest

Minneapolis, Minn.—(AP)—Tony Galento, Orange, New Jersey's global contribution to the prize ring, headed home today following contempt for "dat bum, Lou Nova."

"Gimme Nova and any three guys like him," the two-ton terror of the apocryphal shouted when he learned of Nova's decision over Tommy Farr in New York last night. "I'll take 'em all at the same time. I'll knock 'em loose from their ankles without even gettin' a sweat up."

Galento knocked out Dick Daniels, Minneapolis, in the third round of what was billed as an "exhibition" last night. Angered when Daniels poked him with hard right to the face, Galento flattened him once with a right over the heart, then warned: "Now will you behave?"

When Daniels threw some more punches, Galento repeated the treatment and Daniels stayed down. Galento weighed 226 pounds, Daniels 184.

Wisconsin Cast As Underdog in Contest Tonight

Jammed Auditorium Will See Annual Classic In Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE—A University of Wisconsin basketball team which is prospering in the underdog role tonight meets a Marquette university team out for revenge.

In the first meeting of the teams this season, the Badgers confounded the experts with a 27-26 verdict at Madison.

As many spectators as the auditorium will hold for a basketball game, 6,300, are assured. Neither team will have an advantage in the playing floor, since the Hilltoppers have played all their home games in their own gymnasium.

Coach Bill Chandler of Marquette was ready to string along with four veterans—Bobby Deneen, Moose Graf, Sparky Adams and Dave Quabius—and one rookie, Bill Komelich. Coach Bud Foster of Wisconsin may revise his "starless" lineup to include the veteran Bob Weigandt, football end, at a guard post. In Andy Smith and Dave Dupe, reserves last season, Foster has uncovered a pair of high scoring forwards.

GOPHERS VS. CRIGHTON
Chicago—(AP)—Eight Big Ten basketball teams deploy on a wide front tonight, half of them facing intersectional foes between New York and Illinois.

Only two conference teams are idle, Ohio State and Chicago. The Maroons played their lone game of the week last night, defeating Armour Tech, 48 to 11, while the Buckeyes have not been scheduled since last Saturday.

Northwestern invades the east for the first time tonight, playing St. John's in Madison Square Garden. Michigan's undefeated cagers take on Rochester University at Rochester.

In other intersectional games Illinois entertains the University of North Dakota and Indiana is host to Connecticut State.

Purdue, last season's conference titleholder, faced a traditionally tough outside rival in De Paul. Highly rated Minnesota, undefeated in three games, matches shots with Creighton at Minneapolis, and Iowa and Butler play at Indianapolis.

Wisconsin, dark-horse candidate for title honors in pre-race predictions, will be out to make it two straight tonight over Marquette at Milwaukee.

Thus far conference teams have won 21 of 24 games against outside opposition, only Chicago, Iowa and Northwestern bowing to early season foes.

The conference title race begins the first week in January.

Alger Leads Kaws To 26-18 Conquest Of Menasha Squad

Winners Forge Ahead in Last Half; Speed Is Factor

BY RANDY HAASE
MENASHA—Kaukauna High school cagers scored a 26 to 18 victory over Menasha in a slow Northeastern Wisconsin conference game in the high school gymnasium Friday night.

Alger, awkward, angular Kaukauna center, was the high point man with four baskets and a free throw. Alger slapped three rebounds back for baskets and helped Kaukauna to control the rebounds at each end of the court.

Except for a brief period in the second quarter, Kaukauna held the lead all of the way through the game. The Kaws opened the scoring with a long set shot by Biseix. Alger followed by tipping in a rebound. Harry Zelinski put Menasha on the board with a goal from the basket. Block counted a free throw to make the score 4 to 3 at the quarter.

Giordana, who counted seven points for the Kaws, opened the second quarter by dribbling in for a basket. Zelinski then scored another goal and was fouled by Alger as he shot. The Menasha center tied the score on the gift shot. Giordana counted on Block's foul to put Kaukauna ahead 7 to 6. Landskron caged a one-handed shot to put Menasha into the lead for the first and only time. Swedberg came back with a goal although he missed the free throw when Landskron fouled him as he shot. Alger topped in two more rebounds before the half ended to put the Kaws ahead 13 to 8.

Alger Stars
The Kaws used screening plays and set shots while under the basket and counted on the rebound work of Alger. The Bluejays failed to show much of an offense as the Kaws were just too fast for them. Zelinski was the high Menasha scorer with six points while Block, Resch and Landskron had four points each.

Alger opened the second half with a goal to stretch the lead to 15 to 10 before Landskron counted on a pass from out of bounds. Giordana picked up a point on Landskron's foul and then missed on Kuester's foul. Block, of Kaukauna, previously had been held scoreless but in the last part of the game he collected three baskets, chiefly on sleeper plays. He was alone under the basket to push in a rebound and to make the score 18 to 10. Block of Menasha then countered with a goal to make the score at the third quarter 18 to 12.

New Menasha Team
Coach N. A. Calder substituted an entire team at the opening of the fourth quarter. After a minute of play the starting group went back in again. Kaukauna, however, added a point on Giordana's free throw and a basket by Block to make the score 21 to 12. Block of Kaukauna's Block retaliated with a field goal that made the score 23 to 13. Resch came back with a sensational long shot.

Zelinski fouled Alger and the Kaukauna center converted to put the Kaws ahead 24 to 15. Giordana scored the final Kaukauna point by dribbling in under the basket for a goal but missed the free throw when he was fouled by Zelinski.

Coach Paul Little substituted a complete new team in the final minute. Just as the final horn blew Koch fouled Zelinski. With the game over, the Menasha center made one of two shots to set the final score at 26 to 18. The Jays made four out of 10 free throw attempts while Kaukauna made four out of 13.

Credit 'Third Down' Getchell With Top Sport Freak in 1938

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
NEW YORK—John (Wrong Down) Getchell, of Minneapolis, wins the doubtful crown of contributing sports' outstanding oddity during 1938.

Getchell's slip of the tongue—he said third down when he should have said fourth—not only aided Notre Dame to win Carnegie Tech but also gained recognition as the year's most freakish incident from the 70 sports editors participating in the Associated Press' eighth annual poll.

All told 38 sports editors nominated the Getchell incident and no other sports oddity came even close.

Irish Awarded Ball
The Minneapolis referee made his famous decision Oct. 22. Carnegie and Notre Dame were locked in a scoreless draw in the fourth quarter. Carnegie had possession of the ball near midfield when Paul Friedlander, Carnegie quarterback, asked Getchell what down it was. Getchell said "third" and Friedlander called for a running play which failed to make first down. Getchell then declared it had been fourth down and the ball went over on Carnegie's 40-yard line. Notre Dame scored the only touchdown of the game three plays later. Had Friedlander played it as fourth down, he undoubtedly would have kicked and Carnegie's only defeat of the season might have been avoided.

John Vander Meer's two successive no-hit, no-run games ranked as the No. 2 oddity of the year, followed by the 2-2 football draw played by Virginia Military and Virginia Tech and the collision between Stanley Hack and Bill Jurgens over a dinky infield roller in the second game of the World Series, costing the Cubs two runs. Close behind in the balloting were Ferebee's series of golf marathons and the grim hunting accident which cost Monte Stratton, White Sox pitcher, a leg.

Football Oddities
Football furnished its full share of oddities, including the victories Duke and Notre Dame scored over Iowa and Minnesota although each made only one first down; temple's 26-26 tie with Boston college; Detroit's 7-6 victory over Santa Clara after Gus Dorais, Detroit coach, had suggested the game be played with the try for extrapoint eliminated; Ohio State's football strike on the eve of the Michigan game; Iowa State's feat in scoring two touchdowns in the last four minutes of the Kansas State 13-13; the "heavenly gates" incident at Dartmouth; Jack Dodd's "theft" of the ball and 90-yard run for touchdown in Nebraska's game with Minnesota.

Southern California kicking on fourth down with one foot to go and trailing Washington 7-6 late in their game; Occidental using two centers against Colorado college and both scoring touchdowns; the "twelfth man" episode in Xavier-Providencia game; Paul Kromer's 46-yard punt return for Michigan against Penn when Kromer first fumbled the ball, recovered it on the bounce and scored without losing a stride.

Among the other oddities mentioned were slow footed Gabby Hartnett stealing home for the winning run against the Phillies; a Harvard polo pony kicking in the goal that won the intercollegiate indoor title for Yale; the perfect 300 rolled by a one-armed bowler; the jailing of Baron Gottfried Von Cramm by Nazi authorities.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

Saturday Talk

While I was writing the story about iceboats for our column of the past Thursday, my thoughts went back to my boyhood, to a time when I made an "ice boat" of a sort for myself.

I was about 10 years old at the time, and my home was beside Lake Monona, a lake named by Indians long ago. I enjoyed sliding down hill on my sled, and now and then a slide took me out on the ice of the lake.

One day, when there was a high wind, I decided to make a small sail and see whether I could use it to speed along the smooth, glistening ice which stretched over the lake for a distance of a mile or so.

Before many minutes passed, I was busy nailing laths together as a framework for the sail. I do not remember what kind of cloth I used, but I found some which would serve the purpose.

Then down to the lake with my sled and sail! How excited I was when I raised the sail while I sat on the sled!

Slowly at first, but then with increasing speed, the wind took me forward. It was a thrill of thrills as I was carried along for hundreds of feet. Ride after ride I had with the help of that sail, which measured about three feet by four feet. Although I could ride in only one direction, I did not mind walking back against the blustering wind—since each walk meant a new ride.

Yes, ice can give us joy but as I said the other day we must take care that the ice is thick enough. There is no sport worth the risk of breaking through thin ice and drowning in chill waters.

In a later year on that same lake, two of my younger brothers had an adventure which might have ended in a tragedy. They were walking across one end of the lake in the late winter, when much of the ice covering was gone. One brother made a "test" to see how far out he could go without breaking through. The test ended with a splash, and a very cold little boy shouted for help.

Wilbur, the other brother, went to the rescue. During the last 20 feet or so, he crawled on the ice, so he could spread his weight over a larger surface, and keep from breaking through. At last he reached the boy who was clinging to the edge of the ice, and pulled him to safety.

People who break through ice do not always have someone to come to the rescue. Let us watch our step, so we can have many years in which to enjoy living.

New York —(AP)— Selected stocks displayed recovery symptoms in today's market but many issues still were inclined to rest after their recent climb.

While individual spots of strength and weakness were in evidence at the close, minor gains and losses were about evenly divided. Numerous stocks were unchanged. Dealings were quiet throughout, transacting approximately 500,000 shares for the two hours.

A few steels, railroads, utilities and specialties gave the best account of themselves. Motors, rails, oils, mail orders and coppers held to a narrowly uneven groove.

Further weakness of Loew's was somewhat of a chilling influence on speculative sentiment. This stock, off nearly five points yesterday, added about two more to the recession. Wall street was a bit puzzled over the performance of the film issue. Some attributed the dip partly to year-end tax-selling, which acted as brake on other shares, as well as to fears for the outcome of stockholders' suits against the management.

United States Steel and Bethlehem drew support notwithstanding that another downturn in steel mill operations next week was believed in the cards. At the same time, orders from railroads and other quarters were expected to prop this industry in the early part of 1934.

Bonds were a trifle easier and commodities were irregular.

Passenger Revenues

Drop on North Shore

Chicago —(AP)— A 21.45 per cent decline of passenger revenues in November as compared with the same period a year ago was reported by the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad yesterday.

Service on the road was halted from Aug. 16 to Oct. 6 because of a strike of operating employees.

Limited service between Chicago, Waukegan and other points to Milwaukee declined 25.6 per cent from Oct. 6 to Nov. 30, compared with the same period in 1932.

Wheat Prices Dip

As Argentina Sees

Near-Record Crop

Forecast Has Depressing

Effect on World

Quotations

Chicago —(AP)— Indications that this season's wheat production in Argentina would be larger than the grain trade expected had a depressing effect on world prices today.

Values abroad slumped as much as a cent after announcement of an official Argentine crop forecast predicting a near-record harvest. Domestic prices held up fairly well. Extreme declines of 1 cent here were reduced later. Trading was slow.

Receipts were: wheat 21 cars, corn 141, oats 41.

Wheat closed 1-1/2 cent lower, May 66 1/2, July 65 1/2, corn 1-1/2 down, May 51 1/2, July 52 1/2, and oats lost 1-1/2.

HOW TO WIN

1. Read the ads in this Christmas "Gift Selector" carefully. A new cartoon picture will appear daily in the space above until Christmas.

The Home Mutual Casualty Company extends its heartiest congratulations to David A. Wiese, local insurance agent, on his third anniversary as a successful insurance counselor. His work in the Appleton community has been one of public service.

Affiliating with the Home Mutual Casualty Company only three years ago, this local man, with profound enthusiasm and a special talent for gaining the confidence of his fellow citizens, has forged ahead so that in his various lines of insurance he now serves about 1500 policyholders in the city of Appleton and nearby vicinity. Mr. Wiese has mastered the technique of insurance in a most gratifying manner, which is evidenced by the fact that he has sold insurance to persons in every walk of life, including: bankers, insurance executives, machinists, millwrights, bookkeepers, adjusters, janitors, clerks, garage employees, etc.

Mr. Wiese's career as an insurance man has been a most interesting one. His personal interest in each of his clients has made him a welcome caller in many Appleton homes. He is entirely engrossed in his work and his policy of fair dealing has won him many new friends. In case of loss under a policy contract Mr. Wiese is on hand immediately after knowledge of same reaches him. Many Appleton car owners insuring in the Home Mutual Casualty Company through the Wiese Agency have received payment for losses in which they were involved within a few hours after the mishap. The value of an insurance agent to a company can be skillfully measured by his loss ratio. Here again Mr. Wiese has been outstanding and when commended on his loss ratio of 8 per cent for the past year with the Home Mutual Casualty Company, he gave full credit to his clients and said, "My loss ratio can be directly attributed to the safe and courteous driving habits of my clients. I can only thank them for making it possible for me to establish such a record." When in the market for insurance, Home Mutual Casualty Com-

Nehls Makes Valuable Suggestions in Home Decoration

Wallpaper and proper paint interior decorating offers unusual opportunities to "tie together" the various color elements, the rooms of a home, in an harmonious effect, points out the William Nehls Company, 228 W. Washington street, well-known paint and wallpaper store and decorators.

If you are redecorating a room from top to bottom, wallpaper or paint, the Nehls firm continues, will establish your color scheme when selecting fabrics for furniture covers, draperies, and rugs. If you are not buying new furnishings, then you should select a paper or paint which conforms to the color scheme already established in the room.

Generally speaking, explains Nehls, where a color already predominates it is best to select wallpaper with a neutral ground, one which has a small amount of the key color in the pattern. The thought is to pick up tones which are too weak or in too small amounts, thus giving the room more character.

These are points which are well to keep in mind in regard to color schemes. The combination of colors on any particular pattern of the Imperial Washable Wallpaper line which Nehls feature has been selected by the best informed color experts, points out this firm. Therefore, you can use the various colors occurring in Imperial patterns for the balance of the room—draperies, furniture coverings, etc.

Each one of the many patterns in the large stock of Imperial Washable Wallpapers carried by the William Nehls Wallpaper company represents the utmost in styling, durability, color fastness, washability, and quality possible. Each one of these patterns is of authentic design, artistically correct, both in design and coloring. No finer selection of wallpaper patterns can be found anywhere than that being shown at the Nehls store, this firm believes. You are invited to come in at any time to see them at your first opportunity. Nehls' years of experience in home decorating are also at your service. If it is painting you are interested in, the famous Benjamin Moore quality paints and varnishes are at your disposal at the Nehls store.

MUSICAL GIFTS SURE TO PLEASE

The merriest Santa Claus is a musical Santa, and homes where musical gifts are to be found this Christmas will be the merriest. This is the opinion of the Van Zeeland Music Company, 106 N. Oneida street, and the firm has ample reason for this belief after noting the big swing to instruments this year. The display above represents a few of the many gifts offered by Van Zeeland and is a portion of the finest selection of new—as well as good used—instruments the company has shown in its 10 year history. Incidentally, it costs little to purchase an instrument for a child in your family or for yourself, and a course of lessons from a competent instructor is also remarkably reasonable at Van Zeeland's. A small down payment is all that is required to put a fine instrument in your home by Christmas time, and future payments can be economically arranged.

IT'S LA VILLA FOR CHRISTMAS CANDY!

Christmas and candy are inseparable, reminds La Villa, popular candy headquarters and eating place, 130 E. College avenue. A typical Christmas package of La Villa candy is pictured here. In addition, purchasers can again secure the famous "Temptation Mixed" assortment of chocolates and bon bons in either boxes or bulk form. Incidentally, the lunches at La Villa are a delightful help to Christmas shoppers during these last busy days, and whether you incline to tea and toast, beer and sandwich, or a full course luncheon, you're sure to be pleased.

Both of these instruments are produced by the Martin Handcraft Band Instrument company, the Martin being its top quality product. Both types are built by hand, a feature recognized by leading musicians as the superior method of construction. It is not too late, reminds the Bieritz firm, to give serious thought to the purchasing of a gift this Christmas for children or friends which is so practical and gives such lasting enjoyment. Perhaps no other gift may boast these features more than a good musical instrument. Stimulating personal pride and encouraging youthful musical taste and natural ability, it is an ideal gift which is certain to be appreciated more and more as the children grow up. All instruments purchased from the Bieritz firm may be bought under an easy-payment plan if desired, with liberal trade-in allowances for old instruments. Many bargains are also available in good, used instruments. In addition to offering all types of factory instrument repair service, special attention is called to the fact that the Bieritz firm has the most modern

Keep Good Health At Holiday Time; Depend on Belling

Prescription Specialist Also Has Fine Gift Suggestions

Keeping in good health is especially difficult during the exciting days before Christmas. Constant caution is necessary, advises Belling's Drug Store, to keep you and your family healthy and able to enjoy Christmas. It is an unhappy home at Christmas when someone in the house is ill and unable to share in the celebration.

Check with your doctor, urges Belling's Drug Store, 204 E. College avenue, and bring his prescription to be filled at this store. Belling's is a real prescription drug store, known for its accurate compounding of prescriptions, and for seeing that only the finest and purest of ingredients go into your prescription.

Mothers in this vicinity say—"When I am given a prescription to be filled, I go to Belling's. My children need immediate relief in times of sickness, and I can depend upon Belling's to handle my doctor's prescription efficiently and promptly." Opinions of many doctors and nurses also favor the work done at Belling's. Such opinions have resulted from years of practical experience and service which Belling's prescription department and the entire store have faithfully given.

Flowers are Final Gift to Make for Ideal Christmas

Riverside Greenhouses Wire Flowers to All Points

"And what else shall I get her?" A stock question is this one as Christmas hovers just around the immediate corner, and harassed males seek the gift that will be the finishing touch for the lady's Christmas.

The answer is to be found in the stock of magnificent flowers and plants at Riverside Greenhouses, and the selection is made doubly easy because Riverside maintains retail headquarters both downtown in the Conway hotel and at the greenhouses themselves at 1238 E. Pacific street. Or, as a matter of fact, a telephone call to the downtown store (3012) or the greenhouses (5400) will turn the trick.

After all, the clever woman who insists on gay floral pieces for her home at Christmas time is probably availing herself of the famous Riverside stock for her flowers. She doesn't hesitate to call on Riverside for good advice on what flowers to use for this time of year and how to arrange them.

For those folks who live at some distance and who need to be remembered, the Riverside offers the essential telegraph delivery service which will put flowers into practically any home you care to make happy—no matter where that home might be.
